QUIT CLAIM DEED TRANSFERRING THE ASSETS OF THE UNITED STATES TREASURY TO THE IMF

Happy Fourth of July! Be sure to have your friends and family READ this so they know what they celebrated on the 4th with Fireworks and Taxes!

By Teamlaw

Our family enjoys fireworks; yet, sometimes I wonder, what are people today celebrating? Do they even know? Are we celebrating war by shooting off beautiful explosions of light, sound and smoke reminiscent of "bombshells bursting in air"? Are we celebrating Independence from Great Britain? Or, have we forgotten what we're celebrating; so, we just celebrate for the sake of the celebration?

On the Fourth of July, 1776, the 13 independent States of North America united in a Congress, through their plenipotentiary delegates and signed the Declaration of Independence. As separate States, united in their cause for freedom from tyranny, they went to war as a nation. For the first time these unbound States stood together to fight a war, without a single document to bind them as a nation. At the cause of defending their Liberty, they together declared their Independence; knowing they would likely give their all, even if they could survive—but their chances of survival were slim.

But what is Liberty? What did it mean? What does it mean now? What is this Independence they fought and gave their all for? We are taught that for hundreds of years Great Britain thought of this nation simply as one of their colonies and during that time, it grew to become one of their most lucrative productive assets.

But the people that lived here were, for the most part, independent land patent secured self-governed landowners. In other words, they were independent sovereign landowners. Though the Magna Carta had little effect on the people in Great Britain (it only deals with sovereign rights), the people here recognized it as descriptive of their sovereign rights. Respectively, their land patents secured their sovereign Title to the Land itself, which permanently secured their sovereign right to self-government. Still, the people remained in debt to Great Britain, which debt was used to control both the people and the states they formed. Through debt bound contracts, Great Britain was able to glean 50% of the people's production from the land. As the people formed governments, those governments also borrowed from Great Britain and British control, by debt bound contracts, remained elemental to American existence.

The French American War threatened to end Great Britain's commerce with America. Thus, England sent troops to defend the Americans (and their contracts). With British support, France lost the French American war; but, England separately remained at war with France and so retained troops in America to assure the French would not return. Great Britain had very few forts here so to house their troops they began to compel the people to quarter British troops in their homes. That caused the necessity for compelling the people to relinquish their arms to British quartermasters to avoid armed hostilities between troops and disgruntled colonists". The troops that remained progressively violated the people's rights until the people would take no more. The people began to believe war was imminent so they secretly began to stockpile supplies hidden from British supervision.

Meanwhile, back in England, the people were rebelling against high tax burden set to pay for the war in America, and the English Parliament and King were looking for ways to shift the burden on the American people. The problem was, Great Britain had no right to rule here and could only lawfully control the people here in accord with the contracts they had already established. But, that did not stop them from trying many ways of shifting the tax burden to the American people. In 1765, they tried to impose a "Stamp Act" to impose a tax on many goods; but, the American people had no representation in the British Parliament, none of the members of that Parliament were land owners and 80% of the Americans owned over 50 acres of land—thus, the people were outraged and regularly hijacked and destroyed the stamps before they could be put to use. In 1766, the Stamp Act was repealed; but Parliament then passed the "Declaratory Act", declaring they had the right to enact laws for the "13 colonies" in America. Then in 1767, Parliament passed the "Townsend Acts", which required taxes on several specific products like paper, paint, glass and tea. Parliament thought the American people would accept this Act because it reduced the number of products taxed and proposed to remove the expense of certain government officials from the people. The people saw it as a formal attempt to take away their right to self-government. This caused hot rebellion against Great Britain's attempted usurpation. In 1768, Great Britain responded by sending more troops to maintain the peace (and to secure control). In Boston (British headquarters city), on March 5th, 1770, some of the people were harassing British soldiers and began throwing snowballs; fray broke out and the soldiers shot and killed five people. Great Britain removed the soldiers to try them in England where

SUPREME COURT RULES IN FAVOR OF GUN OWNERSHIP RIGHTS

WASHINGTON - The Supreme Court ruled Thursday (6-27-08) that Americans have a constitutional right to keep guns in their homes for self-defense, the justices' first major pronouncement on gun control in U.S. history.

The court's 5-4 ruling struck down the District of Columbia's 32-year-old ban on handguns as incompatible with gun rights under the Second Amendment. The decision went further than even the Bush administration wanted, but probably leaves most firearms restrictions intact.

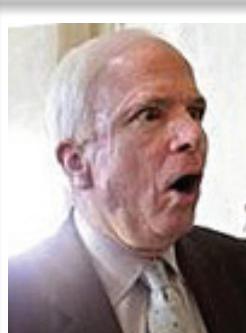

The court had not conclusively interpreted the Second Amendment since its ratification in 1791. The amendment reads: "A well regulated militia, being necessary to the security of a free state, the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed."

The basic issue for the justices was whether the amendment protects an individual's right to own guns no matter what, or whether that right is somehow tied to service in a state militia. Writing for the majority, Justice Antonin Scalia said that an individual right to bear arms is supported by "the historical narrative" both before and after the Second Amendment was adopted.

The Constitution does not permit "the absolute prohibition of handguns held and used for self-defense in the home," Scalia said. The court also struck down Washington's requirement that firearms be equipped with trigger locks or kept disassembled, but left intact the licensing of guns. Scalia noted that the handgun is Americans' preferred weapon of self-defense in part because "it can be pointed

John McCain, as reported on June 19th, as President, would press for the construction of 100 nuclear reactors by 2030, pledging 2 billion a year of federal funds (your tax money!) to clean-up coal burning... all to reduce a dependence on foreign oil! The 'AIR-TURBINE ENGINE' burns no fuel, emits no polluting exhaust and can be retrofitted to any size; for cars, boats, airplanes, homes, apartment buildings, high-rises, submarines and even ELECTRICAL GENERATION PLANTS with no fuel expense or exhaust! Over 29 federal agencies and major corporations were notified of the AIR-TURBINE ENGINE and all have gone silent with respect to the greatest technological invention/design of this type of 'turbine-engine' in our time that works! DOES GOVERNMENT HAVE YOUR BEST INTEREST IN MIND (5.00 A GSALLON GAS!) AND THAT OF THE PLANET???

By Anton Bernhardt
The future has arrived with the solution to our world's energy needs. The Aerodynamic Air Turbine Engine (AATE), aptly named "The Crystal Ion", will be the energy revolution we have been waiting for. Clean energy utilizing the force of nature to create powerful and sustainable motion with no detrimental environmental impact is here. The air we breathe is the same air that drives the AATE; no wind required. This is not a perpetual motion machine. When I first learned of Rockwell Scientific Research L.L.C. (RSR) and the AATE, I was very skeptical. The more I thought about it the more my feelings mixed. Can this be real? My thoughts torn between my disbelief and belief. I became more exhilarated as the myriad of potential uses flooded my neuron pathways; an engine that runs on ambient air, without any air tanks, combustion or fuel cells, producing no exhaust. The thoughts thrilled me to no end. I just had to see the engine for myself. I will forever remember the day I actually saw the engine running with my own eyes. As un-believable as it first appeared my skepticism quickly turned to enthusiasm that was so totally overwhelming I nearly wet myself. Here was the future, right before me. The engine hummed along at 30k plus RPM without any fuel or exhaust. The clear design of the casing afforded a detailed view of the interior. There were no electronics inside except for the LEDs. As the throttle revved the engine up and down it was clear to me that this was genuine and not a hoax.

WRITE HARD - DIE FREE!

From the EDITOR

Dear Subscribers and Readers:

Well, I woke up yesterday to $4.37 a gallon for gas and half the year has zipped on by! But our Country is in distress. From the declaration of Martial Law imposed by Abraham Lincoln, to the National Emergency declared in 1933, the States then declared the same, whereby "freedoms guaranteed by the Constitution have been abridged by states of National Emergency."

But the political puppets running for office nor Congress has any intentions of the correction of such, rather, any way to enhance the continuous emergency allows them to maintain the dysfunctional managed American-Way-of-Life, in a distorted manner to regulate, control, tax and otherwise to deprive the American people of "a guaranteed right to Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness!"

And that's just the way it is in America today! But many will have lit the Fireworks on the 4th of July, only to celebrate their servitude. Little do they know!

Then there's the GAS price issue. It's all controlled, even though the price of gas today is equivalent to the value of silver (a 25¢ piece), it is certainly affecting the overall economy and making extremely difficult for people trying to survive in these times. And since the government is making no attempts to correct it, as there is plenty of oil in the U.S., Canada, Alaska, it must be presumed that is planned to affect you in the pocket-book in relation to the fact the mega-oil companies are making billions!

Then there's the AIR -TURBINE ENGINE. We have published three articles on this engine, and still, due to the warnings of Global warming, the whining of high gas prices, the comments by political mouth pieces that 'we must find and use any technology to reduce pollution and increase gas mileage', however, there is no interest or activity of the governments nod, support, or funding to get the 'engine' into the market place! Go figure! But we understand! Go to> airturbineengine.com to see the engine run!

But since we are on the GAS issue, it is either lunacy or stupidity on the part of the so-called federal government to not only allow this to happen, but failing miserably to prevent it... starting 10 years ago! All this could have been prevented by ensuring the ongoing search for oil in the U.S., Canada, Alaska, etc., and there's plenty, as well as directing the major Oil Companies to build a few more gas refinery plants in the U.S.! If we as a Country, with the vast amount of oil here, cannot have our so-called government servants, take all necessary steps to ensure adequate oil reserves as well as refining, so as to maintain 'our' control over such a commodity.

And what about those Carburetors ('Pogh' and others) designed and built to give 150 to 300 miles a gallon! Oh, they were bought up by the Major Petroleum Companies and/or the federal government and either tucked away in some vault somewhere or destroyed. And their designer/builders hushed up or shot! Modus operandi for those threatened by a technology to give inexpensive energy tools and gadgets to the people for the least amount of expense. Gee, then those Oil Magnets wouldn't be making Billions a year in profits. And yes, they still drive the SUV's and Hummers cause they can afford the gas... you can't!

Hope you enjoy this issue and find it interesting and informative. And if I didn't say it before... your subscription supports this Free Press Paper... for the evolving sovereign people of America!

OPEN LETTER TO THE POLICE AND MILITARY PERSONNEL

Dear Police Officer and/or Member of the U.S. Military:

This retired officer served proudly in the U.S. Armed Forces for twenty years, which included three overseas assignments. I spent 1½ years in the USAF as an enlisted member, and 8½ years in the U.S. Army (warrant officer and commissioned officer). While in the USAF, I flew on numerous hazardous duty reconnaissance missions against the Soviet Union. On a number of occasions we had Soviet fighter aircraft intercept us over international waters and try to shoot us down. I also flew on a few combat reconnaissance missions off the coast of Vietnam. Those of us who flew these missions knew that there was a risk to our lives; however, we never really thought much about it because we "had a job to do." We had been taught that the Communists were our enemies, and that we had to keep an eye on them to see what they were up to. It was not until after I retired that I found out that while one hand of America was working to halt the advance of Communism, there was another hand of America that was supporting Communism. And that is why we fought both Korea and Vietnam Wars with "one hand tied behind our backs." The rich, power elite were controlling both sides - often selling arms to both sides - and always reaping big war profits. Their agenda included driving both sides deeper into debt, sometimes to gain control of mineral resources, and always to make the world fit into the mold that they wanted.

This retired officer loves this Republic, our U.S. Constitution and Bill of Rights, and the American people. I subscribe to the motto: "The true patriot does not love his government. The true patriot loves his country and watches his government." Our founding fathers wisely placed strict limits on the federal government - their intentions being that most government functions were to take place at the LOCAL level, and that included the police. There is absolutely NOTHING in the Constitution that authorizes national police. Our founding fathers knew that "power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely." They did not want too much power accumulating in the federal government. They also knew that guns in the hands of the American citizens would greatly reduce the chances of tyrannical government raising its ugly head here in America - and that is why they placed the 2nd Amendment (the Right to keep and bear Arms) into the Bill of Rights. They believed that if government was doing what was right, then it had nothing to fear from its citizens. They also knew that tyrannical governments always try to disarm their citizens. But what is this that we see in America today? We see our government infringing more and more on our Right to keep and bear Arms. Why? It is very well documented that those areas in America that have the strictest gun control laws also have the highest violent crime rates (e.g., Washington, D.C.)! Those areas of the country that have large numbers of armed citizens also have the least amount of violent crime. So why is our government pushing gun control so hard?

And that brings us to the main reason for this letter - the motto of the fine folks at Aid & Abet Police & Military Newsletter is this: "Tyranny cannot come to the door of any American unless it comes in uniform." As their outstanding book, Operation Vampire Killer 2000 (OVK 2000) points out, it is the police officer, National Guardsman, reservist, and/or active duty military member who will be ordered by their government to disarm the citizens "for their own good" ...and who will be used as "cannon fodder" to do so... because there will be some patriotic Americans who will recognize that surrendering their firearms will remove the "last restraint" of government. As OVK 2000 states: "It is time to seriously consider what each of us will do when these global elitists in our government instruct OFFICERS and NATIONAL GUARDSMEN to go forth and take the guns away from the armed, good people of your city or town... FOR THEIR OWN GOOD." OVK 2000 also asks our American police officers and military personnel, "Which way will your own gun face when the orders are issued? Will you protect the people you have sworn to protect? Or, will you do what other patriotic officers from other countries have done to their countrymen, OBEDIENTLY JUST FOLLOW the God-given rights of the People which we defend. And we must use our influence, our discretion, and sometimes our authority to protect these unalienable rights."

Yes... sometime... possibly in the very near future... you may have to choose whether you will "just follow orders" and help disarm the American people and herd many of them into "detention centers," or whether you will refuse unlawful and ungodly orders and stand on the side of American citizens and our U.S. Constitution. And please do remember that "I was just following orders" did not fly with the judges at the Nuremberg Trials!

The sad fact of the matter is that the key power positions in our government and in our military today in America are held, for the most part, by international socialists (i.e., globalists). Many of these people are Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) members. As Senator Barry Goldwater stated: "The CFR... believes national boundaries should be obliterated and one world rule established." The CFR is dedicated to ending American sovereignty! The armed American people are the last obstacle in the way of one-world government. And that is why we see a constant effort to promote gun control, and to piecemeal disarm the American people.

Something to consider when making your decision as to whether you will participate in martial law and the disarming of the American people: There is very little difference, if any, between the international socialists running America today, and the Communist leaders who disarmed and then butchered MILLIONS of their own citizens in Soviet Russia and Red China. As the saying goes, "These people eat their young!" History shows us that after these ungodly leaders USED the police and military to disarm the people and do massive relocations of people, many of those police and military personnel were themselves MURDERED during periodic purges (e.g., Stalin's purges, Hitler's purge of the S.A., etc.). Socialists (which are nothing more than slow-moving Communists wearing a happy-face mask) absolutely cannot be trusted! Just look at how many of Bill Clinton's bodyguards have died under very mysterious circumstances! Martial law is looming on the horizon. You may not have a whole lot of time to make your decision. Please do make the right and proper one.

Sincerely,
Darryl Eberhart

Social Security system. The first attempts at developing identification systems in the United States were launched for the purposes of identifying and retrieving runaway slaves. The insistence of the current administration to develop systems, biometric data and a surplus of paper trails for those who are natural born citizens bespeaks a mindset, which can only be considered proprietary. To put it plainly, they think we belongs to them.

the age of sixteen. TAB contacted Congressman Kirk's office with the following questions: 1) what reports or data did the Congressman utilize to conclude that Social Security cards were an issue in identity theft? and 2) What biometric data will be contained on these cards?

The media representative for Congressman Kirk, Elk, refused to respond to these questions.

In 2005, the Real ID act was foisted on America by attaching it as a "Trojan Horse" rider to H.R. 1268, which was an easy shoe-in, mandating Asian tsunami relief and Iraq emergency supplemental appropriations. The Act stipulates that all fifty states are under orders to meet federal standards for the re-designed driver's licenses, effectively turning them into national ID cards by the end of 2009. The plan is seen to be in jeopardy due to grassroots resistance and objections by a number of state governments. A number of pundits now see H.R. 5404 as an effort to bypass this local resistance by instituting a national ID card through a federal channel, the constitutional right guaranteed by the Second Amendment to keep loaded handguns in the house in crime-ridden urban areas."

Joining Scalia were Chief Justice John Roberts and Justices Samuel Alito, Anthony Kennedy and Clarence Thomas. The other dissenters were Justices Ruth Bader Ginsburg and David Souter.

Gun rights supporters hailed the decision. "I consider this the opening salvo in a step-by-step process of providing relief for law-abiding Americans everywhere that have been deprived of this freedom," said Wayne LaPierre, executive vice president of the National Rifle Association.

The NRA will file lawsuits in San Francisco, Chicago and several of its suburbs challenging handgun restrictions there based on Thursday's outcome.

Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., a leading gun control advocate in Congress, criticized the ruling. "I believe the people of this great country will be less safe because of it," she said.

The capital's gun law was among the nation's strictest. Dick Anthony Heller, 66, an armed security guard, sued the District after it rejected his application to keep a handgun at his Capitol Hill home a short distance from the Supreme Court.

"I'm thrilled I am now able to defend myself and my household in my home," Heller said shortly after the opinion was announced.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ruled in Heller's favor and struck down Washington's handgun ban, saying the Constitution guarantees Americans the right to own guns and that a total prohibition on handguns is not compatible with that right.

The issue caused a split within the Bush administration. Vice President Dick Cheney supported the appeals court ruling, but others in the administration feared it could lead to the undoing of other

The American's Bulletin

On the heels of the impending implementation of the Real ID, U.S. Congressman Mark Kirk has introduced yet another bill to further identify American citizens. Now before Congress is the Social Security Identity Theft Protection Act (HR 5405). While on the surface H.R. 5405 purports to be merely a way to protect seniors from identity theft, a close look at the features of the revamped social security card proposed in this legislation reveals it to be, in fact, a national identity card.

According to HR 5405, which was introduced on February 13, 2008 and is now in referral to the House Ways and Means Committee, seniors are at risk for identity theft of their social security cards. The fact that these social security cards were never intended as a vehicle for identification is a matter that has not apparently occurred to Congressman Kirk.

Going on the false premise that Social Security cards are used for identification, Kirk's legislation proceeds to propose a Social Security card with the following features—1) a digital image of the person whose social security number the card bears and 2) an encrypted machine readable electronic record which shall include records of biometric identifiers unique to the individual to whom the card is issued, including a copy of any digitized facial image printed on the face of the card.

The new cards will also be made of tamper proof and wear resistant material, unlike the current cards. Interestingly enough, it is unlawful to laminate the current Social Security cards, and no more than ten cards will ever be issued to one individual in his or her lifetime.

In contrast to the stated aim to protect SENIORS from identity theft, the Act mandates that these cards will be issued to individuals upon reaching

In a dissent he summarized from the bench, Justice John Paul Stevens wrote that the majority "would have us believe that over 200 years ago, the Framers made a choice to limit the tools available to elected officials wishing to regulate civilian uses of weapons."

He said such evidence "is nowhere to be found."

Justice Stephen Breyer wrote a separate dissent in which he said, "In my view, there simply is no untouchable

Media Subterfuge of Ron Paul

Though Mainstream Media Black-balls Ron Paul...
.....there's You Tube!

Hi. I'm Jerry Day.
There seems to be a big reality gap in the Presidential Race, like an elephant in the kitchen and no one wants to say anything. I was looking around YouTube and I noticed something remarkable. I'm going to show you some web data and I think when I'm done, you'll agree that there is something dreadfully wrong with what the broadcast media has told us about the Presidential Race. Let us look at all the major presidential candidates and see how many YouTube videos each of them has as of mid-April 2008. John McCain has over 19,000 videos. Way to go, John! Oops, Hillary Clinton has over 72,000! Sorry, John! Oh my gosh, Barack Obama has almost 85,000 on YouTube! More than McCain or Hillary, Obama IS the man.

Wait a minute. Just for fun, let's look at Ron Paul...

What? 117,000 videos? Ron Paul is by far the leading candidate in YouTube videos, with a margin of 37% over the next leading candidate? This seems absolutely crazy. If that was true, that means that the mainstream media is not only ignorant of relative candidates popularity, they'd be deliberately suppressing Ron Paul against the other candidates in terms of their coverage.

We need to go somewhere where there's better data.

Ah. Google Trends. The lesser-known web search-reporting site that Google doesn't publicize too much. But this may be as powerful. Just so you know how this works, put in any two search terms and you will instantly see a chart showing the relative web traffic comparing the two search terms all the way back to January 2004. Google Trends puts football in blue and basketball in red. This chart shows that football gets 2 to 4 times the web search volume that basketball does. And you can see the web searches surge every year in logical, seasonal patterns for both sports. Down here, it shows us the comparative tracking of news media hits on the two topics. You see similar seasonal patterns, but the media coverage rises more steadily towards the final playoffs, while the fan interest reacts more sharply around the times of the key games. So, we will get to the bottom of this Ron Paul thing right now.

YouTube said that Barack Obama and Ron Paul were the two front-runners. So let's see the chart on Google searches for those two. Ron Paul was twice as popular as Barack Obama from April through November of 2007. So YouTube was right on. It's not crazy.

So how did Obama get this huge spike in December against Ron Paul? The chart below says that the mainstream news media gave Obama 8 or 10 times the news coverage as they gave Ron Paul. When the media started their "Obama Love Fest", Ron Paul

Harris or Gallup, have a sample size of 2 or 3 thousand a few times a year. Google Searches are in the millions every day. Media polls cannot touch this for accuracy. And obviously looking at Ron Paul's actual popularity, bias plays was three times more popular than Obama. Relentless and lopsided media hammering for a few months manages to flip that. Notice that the media chart is squashed vertically. Obama's popularity went up about the same amount as his media coverage. Ron Paul's Internet popularity has consistently been 3 to 5 times greater than that of his media coverage. We like him whether the media does or not.

And that's not true of any of the other candidates. They are toast without their media coverage.

Ron Paul's self-generated popularity is astronomically higher than that of Obama's. So here's what gives me the Willies: When the mainstream print and broadcast media isn't telling us who to vote for and we're allowed to talk among ourselves, we make very different choices than what the media tells us to make. This chart clearly shows that the media has consistently under-reported Ron Paul but he remains massively popular on the Internet anyway.

So YouTube and Google, which operate independently, come up with the same answer: Ron Paul has achieved spectacular, superior popularity on the Internet in spite of massive and inexplicable media suppression.

Imagine what Ron Paul's popularity would be if the mainstream media treated him equally.

Just for a last, quick reality check. Let us look at Ron Paul against the other candidates on Google Searches:

Here is Hillary Clinton in Blue. Just like Obama, she trailed badly against Ron Paul for most of 2007 until the broadcast media put a huge preferential push behind Clinton in December of that year, as the media all but abandoned Ron Paul. Hillary Clinton's media coverage has been a little less than Obama's and her popularity slipped below Obama in perfect synchronization with that difference in broadcast coverage. These charts are very accurate in tracking general popularity relative to media coverage. As you see exactly where Obama's blue line climbed past Hillary at the same general time that he pulled ahead in the primaries.

Most political polls, like a very large part in media polling.

Media polls reported him in single digits while he skyrocketed in popularity all over the web, above all other candidates. So here's the real news that we've seen throughout this campaign: At the times when Ron Paul is vastly more gun regulations, including a federal law restricting sales of machine guns. Other laws keep felons from buying guns and provide for an instant background check.

White House reaction was restrained. "We're pleased that the Supreme Court affirmed that the Second Amendment protects the right of Americans to keep and bear arms," White House spokesman Tony Fratto said.

Scalia said nothing in Thursday's ruling should "cast doubt on long-standing prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons or the mentally ill, or laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and popular than all other candidates, the major media does everything possible to bury him.

The question is not "whether" but "who" is controlling media content and why. Here is Ron Paul against John McCain. The last two thirds of 2007, Ron Paul SLAUGHTERS McCain, even when McCain is supposedly making his comeback. McCain has barely managed by April of 2008 to edge out Ron Paul after having enjoyed many times the media coverage of Ron Paul for months on end. Throughout this presidential campaign, Ron Paul's Internet popularity has been by far the highest relative to his media coverage compared to any other candidate. No one even remotely approaches his self-generated popularity.

What would explain Ron Paul's astounding success on the Internet, far more sensational yet when you correct for the broadcast media imbalance? It is what Ron Paul says. He is the only candidate who understands economics, who understands the war in Iraq, who understands the views and concerns of most Americans and is able to express the realities that so badly need expressing. While all the other candidates take meaningless, rhetorical positions or no positions at all on the things that matter most.

Go to YouTube. Search for Ron Paul. Click on a few videos and you will see why the corporate media is afraid of him. You will see why the American public – at least the majority of the few hundred million of them on the Internet – say that Ron Paul is the only decent choice we will have in 2008.

Washington government says no one would be prosecuted for a gun law violation in cases of self-defense.

The last Supreme Court ruling on the topic came in 1939 in U.S. v. Miller, which involved a sawed-off shotgun. Constitutional scholars disagree over what that case means but agree it did not squarely answer the question of individual versus collective rights.

Forty-four state constitutions contain some form of gun rights, which are not affected by the court's consideration of Washington's restrictions. The case is District of Columbia v. Heller, 07-290.

Medical Task Force decides who will be "left to die" in a Pandemic

By Janet C. Phelan

A"tempest in a teapot" has been brewing following the release of an article by the Associated Press, detailing who will be left to die should a major pandemic hit. The article, entitled "Pandemic could force doctors to let patients die," by AP reporter Lindsay Tanner, was published in dozens of newspapers across the U.S. on May 5, 2008. The article reveals that a task force, comprised of the Department of Homeland Security, in concert with the Center for Disease Control and other agencies has issued recommendations concerning who will not get lifesaving medical care in the event of a disaster or pandemic.

The article sets forth the alleged problem—that in the event of a pandemic flu or other widespread health disaster, medical resources will be scarce. The article then posits the solution—that "hospitals should designate a triage team with the Godlike task of deciding who will and who won't get life saving care."

The AP article cites as the source for this a series of articles, which appeared in the May 2008 issue of Chest Journal, which is a medical magazine dealing largely with respiratory issues. Although the article achieved the lofty language of the healing profession, the intent of the recommendations of triaging the critically ill were nevertheless clear: "Summarized, the compelling reasons for reallocating critical care resources away from any given patient(s) will include the following circumstances—(1) patients who have the highest SOFA scores and/or a SOFA trend that is flat or rising over several days but do not yet meet formal SOFA exclusion criteria; (2) a high degree of inpatient acuity with a poor chance for survival, and a likely long duration of need for critical care resources; (3) a moderate degree of acuity for a prolonged duration of critical care resource need is expected; and (4) a severe underlying chronic illness that in conjunction with any of the above factors leads a decision maker to feel the prognosis is poor..." SOFA is defined as the Sequential Organ Failure Assessment. The other component of the exclusion criteria is the severity of chronic illness.

The list of those "left behind" could have come straight out of Hitler's eugenics manual. The AP article list includes the elderly, those with a severe chronic disease and the mentally impaired. The article fails to clarify what is meant by "mental impairment," and thus leaves open to question whether those designated to die will include Alzheimer's patients, the developmentally disabled, the autistic and those diagnosed with "mental disorders" such as obsessive-compulsive disorder, schizoaffective disorder or depression.

The article has generated quite a bit of media response, according to Dr. Asha Devereaux, who is a critical care specialist in the San Diego area and one of the lead writers for the articles. Devereaux declined to speak on the record, but indicated that a rebuttal has been written to Tanner's AP article. The rebuttal is not now available.

According to Dr. Lewis Robinson, author of two of the five articles, the task force did not issue a "government plan" but rather "suggestions," which have not yet become policy. In an interview on June 12, Robinson detailed some of the perceptions which impelled the task force to form to tackle this grim project.

"After Katrina," stated Robinson, "we realized that we needed to be better organized." While admitting that a bird flu pandemic was a possibility, he stated that the suggestions offered by the task force could be useful in any type of bio-emergency. "What we are seeking here," he said, "are fair, uniform and standard procedures in the event of a catastrophe. Look at it this way. Say we have five hundred ventilators and ten thousand patients, all in respiratory failure. One of the patients is a pregnant woman, who is carrying her first child. One of the patients is a seventy-five year old man with dementia. Another is a five-year-old boy, and another is a thirty five year old with end term pancreatic cancer. You see where I'm going with this? What we are attempting to do is to provide standards for the allocation of the ventilators."

Various sources have leveled accusations that the bird flu pandemic is in the works, cooked up in a Ft. Dietrich-style government lab. Anti-vaccination activist Dr. Rebecca Carley (drcarley.com) has stated that the bird flu vaccine will, in fact, cause the bird flu and the resultant pandemic.

Many government levels have been working to prepare for the possibility of a flu pandemic. For example, the New York City Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has an extensive plan in place, including the possibility of suspending state laws, in order to distribute medications (p. 4, NYC DOHMH Pandemic Influenza Preparedness and Response Plan). It is unclear whether the medications will be compulsory. At this point, the implications of the report in Chest Journal is that the government is already working up a triage system in which some will be left to die, should a pandemic hit.

PUTIN THREATENS RECOGNITION OF BREAKAWAY US LAKOTA SIOUX INDIAN TRIBE

WASHINGTON (AFP) - The Lakota Indians, who gave the world legendary warriors Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse, have withdrawn from treaties with the United States, leaders said Wednesday.

"We are no longer citizens of the United States of America and all those who live in the five-state area that encompasses our country are free to join us," long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told a handful of reporters and a delegation from the Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run-down neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.

A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message to the State Department on Monday, announcing they were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they signed with the federal government of the United States, some of them more than 150 years old.

They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming weeks and months, they told the news conference.

Lakota country includes parts of the states of Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

The new country would issue its own passports and driving licences, and living there would be tax free -- provided residents renounce their US citizenship, Means said. The treaties signed with the United States are merely they were acquitted; thus, causing more friction among the American people. The most famous of the British failures to implement taxes took place when they imposed the Tea Act, which doubled sales tax on tea, etc. (from 3% to 6%); rather than paying the increased tax, some "colonists" threw 342 cases of tea into the Boston Harbor, historically preserving the event as the Boston Tea Party.

In response, the British Parliament enacted what the colonist dubbed, "The Intolerable Acts". Accordingly, the independent states united to form their "First Continental Congress", which convened in Philadelphia in September of 1774.

On April 18th, 1775, Paul Revere and William Dawes became famous for their night ride to warn the people that the British were marching on Concord, where they heard they could capture a cache of stockpiled stores and several patriot leaders including Sam Adams and John Hancock.

When the British troops arrived in Lexington, hostilities began and the British troops opened fire on the people's militia who had formed to defend the town--thus, began the "War of Independence". The American's won that battle with a decisive victory routing the British troops at incredible odds.

On June 15th, The Continental Congress appointed George Washington as the commander in chief of the Continental army and the formal defense of America began with an organized army of regular soldiers made up from every state.

On June 17th, 1775, the battle of Bunker Hill and Breed Hill was fought with a decisive victory for the American Militia; however, the British actually won the battle when the Militia ran out of ammunition and had to retreat.

These two American victories caused King George to rethink his war strategy; and, on March 17th, 1776, under the king's order, General William Howe evacuated his command from Boston and moved to New York to engage George Washington and the Continental army. As support, King George assembled an Armada of over 400 ships of the line and sent them to invade the newly united states in America, at New York.

King George's invasion was the last straw. On July 4th, 1776, the Continental Congress adopted the "Declaration of Independence", published it, sent it to the King George and began its delivery to the troops.

said Means.

The Lakota relaunched their journey to freedom in 1974, when they drafted a declaration of continuing independence -- an overt play on the title of the United States' Declaration of Independence from England.

Thirty-three years have elapsed since then because "it takes critical mass to combat colonialism and we wanted to make sure that all our ducks were in a row," Means said.

"This is according to the laws of the United States, specifically article six of the constitution," which states that treaties are the supreme law of the land, he said.

"It is also within the laws on treaties passed at the Vienna Convention and put into effect by the US and the rest of the international community in 1980. We are legally within our rights to be free and independent,"

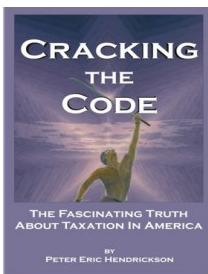

One duck moved into place in September, when the United Nations adopted a non-binding declaration on the rights of indigenous peoples -- despite opposition from the United States, which said it clashed with its own laws.

"We have 33 treaties with the United States that they have not lived by. They continue to take our land, our water, our children," Phyllis Young, who helped organize the first international conference on indigefoundational document, The Articles of Confederation, that document recognized this nation as a nation made up of independent sovereign united States, and gave the name to the new nation as: "The United States of America".

Many of the people of this new nation felt that it was wrong to leave England. Sure there were rights violations but those were livable and their future was a certainty as an English Colony. Now that they were on their own nothing at all was sure.

Over the next ten years conditions in this country continually got worse. The individual States gave little regard to any other State and paid nearly no attention at all to the central government. After ten years of independence from England conditions were far worse than they had ever been under England's rule and protection. Many wanted government officials to go back to England and beg the King to take us back, and they almost did. Again, in the Prelude to Glory: Vol. 7: The Impending Storm you'll discover the starvation and destitution the Articles of Confederation left our country in after the war and the necessity of our Constitution to save the nation. It was incredible! Other historical sources regarding the conditions our country was in at this time are, Are We to Be a Nation?, by Richard B. Bernstein; The American States During & After the Revolution, 1775-1789, by Allan Nevins; The Sovereign States, 1775-1783, by Jackson Turner Main.

"To form a more perfect Union"

Allowing Great Britain to retake the nation was considered too severe without first attempting to resolve the problems of this new nation by getting the States to sit down and work out the problems with the Articles of Confederation. That meeting was finally arranged and each of the Sovereign States gave authority to a few men, Deputies, to sit in convention, and review the present form of government as set in the Articles so as to eliminate its limitations, give sufficient power to the central government to function while still preserving the liberty of the People and autonomy of the States. A trust indenture was formed, it simply began as follows:

"We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America." Continuing with seven Articles and concluding with the signatures of the representative of the twelve states present at the convention. Once agreed to and signed by the individual State's representatives at the convention, the Trust was formed.

The Trust indenture, with the intent and authority of the people created a "Constitutional Republic" form of government in trust. [Specifically not a democracy is in Iraq and Kosovo]

Though the document had no header its leading paragraph named it this: "Constitution for the United States of America". On, September 17th, 1787, it was resolved by the Convention to take the Trust to the individual States for ratification.

The States conditionally turned the Trust down because it removed their sovereignty and didn't secure man's God-given inherent rights, without which the States would not give up their sovereignty to support the Constitution.

Remember, these individual States were recognized as individual Sovereign States in the Articles of Confederation. That was the principle error with the Articles of Confederation; there was no accountability or control over the individual States—there was no unity. Without accountability whoever was in power simply ignored the central government and moved forward however they saw fit, in violation of individual rights, or not, literally however they saw fit. In essence, they were each literally absolutely powerful kingdoms. [Sovereign by definition]

It was obvious that if something wasn't done to unite the States with a more perfect Union they would be destroyed from within or without. So when offered the Constitutional Republic, the individual sovereign States leaders could see they would no longer be sovereign if they accepted it—but they would be destroyed if they didn't.

Not much of a choice, but the war with England ended only a little over ten years earlier and they couldn't go back, so they demanded that if they were to give up their sovereignty, the people's rights must be preserved from the central government. Thus, they conditionally refused the Trust until the "Bill of Rights" was added.

Therefore, the Constitution was first created to form a Trust commonly known as the government of The United States of America. Government officials were set up within the Trust as Trustees with specific defined responsibilities and functions. The People were made beneficiaries of the Trust and when any government official takes office he or she is required to swear or affirm an oath of allegiance [make a contract with the people to uphold the Constitution].

Remember, at this point the government was already created in trust, by the signed Constitution and George Washington was already positioned as its President, yet the Trust had nobody sitting in the other offices of government and the States were not willing to support it (give up their sovereignty) and authorize its officers to function with control over them unless the people's rights and the State's rights were secured.

The Deputies reconvened as the First Constitutional Convention and went back to work to draft the requested, Bill of Rights, which were later provided as the First Twelve Amendments to The Constitution of the United States of America (only ten were ratified), a document that was created to bind officers in an Oath to uphold the Trust of the people and secure the peoples rights.

Then The Constitution for the United States of America (still signed and unchanged from its original version as first presented to the states), along with the "Bill of Rights" as the first ten amendments to The Constitution of the United States of America, were returned to the individual States and were ratified by each of those States and returned to the Constitutional Convention where the new government was made fully effective and put in operation on or after, December 15th, 1791, the "Effective date" of The Constitution of the United States of America.

Now let's go back and again review the documents created in the process by name. (Names are about to become very important when we go to the next step and begin to follow the money.)

Here's what happened step by step:

First: There was the Trust, named within its own first paragraph as this, "Constitution for the United States of America". Remember this document is a Trust indenture; it created a Trust called "the government of The United States of America". This document was accepted and signed by all of the Deputies. The signed

What really boggled my mind was the fact that there were no investors beating down the door to become a part of this new energy revolution. Here was the absolute answer to the energy crisis we are currently facing. What is wrong with Americans today? Why would everyone be so willing to continue down the pathway paved by oil, coal and nuclear technologies when that path results in torturing common citizens, reaching deep into their pockets? Why are so many of our fine young men and women dying needlessly for the right to oil? Why are billions of dollars being spent trading Carbon Credits and where is all that cash going? Are people really concerned about their living environment? Politicians are quick to blame industries for what is really political failure.

So how was the AATE born? In late April 2005 Ron Rockwell, of RSR, was invited to meet with inventor Haskel Karl who claimed to have built an engine powered only by air. Ron met with Haskel in person and after reviewing all his material (consisting only of photographs, drawings and sketches) and detailed phone discussions. Ron decided to rebuild the engine using current technology. I am sure that skepticism reigned high. However, Ron believed this technology had substantial merit and invited his trusted colleague, friend and fellow machinist Cliff Cruz, to join his team in re-creating the engine. Through twelve years of research and development of various devices in the high tech industry, RSR has developed the AATE. In the early 1960's, Haskel took the original engine he built for testing to Wyle Testing Laboratory. They could not figure out how it worked and requested that he leave it with them so they could further analyze the engine. Haskel refused and headed home with the invention. The AATE was scheduled to be presented to President Kennedy at a special meeting. Before this presentation could take place, the people who worked with Mr. Karl on the engine mysteriously disappeared. Shortly thereafter, the engine also disappeared. There was also talk that China was willing to pay 100 billion dollars for the engine but the deal fell through when a key individual died from a massive heart attack. Haskel Karl went into hiding, keeping with him the documents, original drawings, and numerous photos of how he built the engine. Now 40 some years later, the engine is re-born.

Although the concept and science behind the engine (Vortex Air Implosion Technology) was not fully understood at that time, the determination was made that a new prototype based on discussions, drawings and photos, could be built. The task was undertaken.

The machine shop of RSR started the initial construction in May of 2005. Work was arduous. Unique parts needed to be manufactured. In order to do so, new tools also needed to be machined in order to manufacture these parts. There was no manual, guidebook or instructions. Instead Ron and his team had to rely on their knowledge, ingenuity and creativity to build the engine. With the latest technology available today, Ron was able to redesign and improve things that could not be done back in the 60's. Through trial and error (not much of the latter) and 3 million dollars later, they finally completed the first functioning prototype in the fall of 2006.

Ecstatic with the results, arrangements were made to travel to Washington DC to present the engine to the Department of Energy in hopes that they would embrace this unprecedent technology. Unfortunately, Mr. Rockwell and Dr. Beverly were met with bureaucratic indifference. Need more be said? The people needed to know that a solution to the world's energy was available and a press release was issued in November to over 200 newspapers and magazines. Again there was huge indifference by the press who were more focused on news of the war and elections. Case in point. That day in Washington at Fox News Channel 5, they spoke with a woman named Sheila who said "unless [they] had a story about the Iraq war or the upcoming elections that Fox probably wouldn't run a story on it", "those [are] the 2 most pressing issues that people wanted to hear about". Unbelievable! It is this kind of attitude and indifference towards true solutions for peace and clean energy that have prevented this country and our world from realizing its

THE FEDERALIST PAPERS Number 86

THE STATE OF THE UNION UNDER A FAILED CONSTITUTION

By PUBLIUS II

The time has come when it is necessary for someone to take upon himself the task of bringing to the attention of his fellow citizens that those who are sworn to uphold the Constitution are not doing so. That as a result the Nation is embarked on a very dangerous course, the ill effects in terms of financial cost,¹ emotional cost and loss of constitutional rights, can be seen everywhere. This writer proposes to make his case to his fellow Citizens by writing a series of articles under the banner of the Federalist, numbered in sequence after those written by James Madison and Alexander Hamilton. They signed: "PUBLIUS." This writer will sign: "PUBLIUS II."

THE PROBLEM: The nation does not now and has not for some years experienced constitutional or representative government. That is because notwithstanding that the US Constitution was specifically written to prevent any single "same hands" group from accumulating all powers of government, one particular group has succeeded in doing precisely that.

James Madison, author of the US Constitution, wrote:² "No political truth is certainly of greater intrinsic value or is stamped with the authority of more enlightened patrons of liberty than that... the accumulation of all powers legislative, executive and judiciary in the same hands, whether of one, a few or many, and whether hereditary, self appointed, or elective, may justly be pronounced the very definition of tyranny." For then the laws are made not to serve justice, but rather to serve the personal profit of those who make them. To avoid the "same hands" accumulation of power, the Constitution incorporated a system of "separation of powers" and "checks and balances". This system created three separate branches of government. The Legislative (Congress), which makes the laws, the Judiciary (the Courts), which interprets the laws and the Executive (the Presidency), which enforces the laws. By separating the powers of government in this manner it was intended that each branch would serve as a "check" and "balance" to the powers of the other two. This was done in order to make certain that the government would never possess sufficient power to oppress the people.

However for many years now, all three branches of government and the powers they command to control all government, legislative, executive³ and judiciary have effectively "accumulated in the same hands". Those "same hands" belong to the legal profession. As a result the "same hands" lawyer/judges now make the laws, interpret the laws and enforce the laws, thus defeating the spirit, intent and purpose of the Constitution. Such control by this or any other group, is unconstitutional because it violates both the separation of powers/checks and balances principles of the Constitution and the principle of representative government.

These constitutional violations strike at the very heart and soul of the US Constitution. These violations emasculate the Bill of Rights, create an elitist class similar to the European aristocracy of the eighteenth century, unaccountable to anyone but themselves. These violations enable both the Government and the elitist class, under color of law, to oppress the people, in ways too numerous to catalogue in a single article. The control acquired has also seriously undermined the integrity of the legal profession. Fortunately the profession still contains a substantial number of very honest individuals upon whom the nation can rely for the furthering of this just cause.

The solution: The solution lies in returning constitutional government to the United States by ascertaining that members of the legal profession not be permitted to exercise control over either the Executive or the Legislative branches of government. The solution can be achieved through the ballot box by voting lawyers out of office, or through the courts, by constitutionally challenging their election to the non-judiciary branches of government. Lawyers would continue to function in all other areas as before. In other words constitutional government requires the people to control the legal profession, not the legal profession to control the people.

The reader is asked to remember that space limitations control the writer's ability to fully document arguments made. Let us begin with an examination of our rights as citizens under our Declaration of Independence: *The Declaration of Independence holds certain truths to be self evident, that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that, whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it, and to institute a new government, laying its foundations on such principles, and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness.*⁴ It is clear at the present time that the nation's government has become destructive of the ends intended in the Declaration of Independence. The people are more distrustful of their elected officials than ever before, and deeply disturbed with government's inability to provide them with many of their rights under the Constitution. Among which are: Honest government, moral leadership, security, freedom from oppression, proper education, affordable access to the nation's system of justice, and affordable health care. It is therefore the right of the people to alter the government. (In this case only to enforce the Constitution as written). What is unclear to the people is what to do or how to do it. The fundamental source of the nation's problems is not easily apparent. That source does not principally lie in the flawed nature of particular individuals who are elected to government office, for all human beings lack perfection. Rather the "flaw" lies with the way in which the "system" itself is being made to function by those responsible for its functioning. The "systemic flaw" is that the nation, although generally unaware of it, has elected to effective control of the Legislative and Executive branches of government, a plurality or majority of the "same hands" legal profession, as have already acquired absolute control of the Judiciary Branch of government. It is the members of the legal profession who swore an oath to uphold the Constitution.⁵ It is to them that the nation looks for protection from the oppression of government. It is they who bear the full responsibility of bringing to the nation's attention that the Constitution prohibits single group "same hands" control and that such control has occurred. They have done neither. Instead they have both acquired unconstitutional control for themselves and concealed the fact from the nation. Yet it is probable that many in the profession are not even aware of what has occurred.

For many years the legal profession has proceeded, unchallenged and unchecked, knowingly or not, with a history of constitutional violations and abuses against the people of the United States. These activities escalated in the last half century with the establishing of the so-called "Integrated Bars" in the individual States,⁶ to which all practicing lawyers were required by law to belong, thus making every lawyer and judge "a part" of the judiciary. "Integrated Bars" were unconstitutionally⁷ created by the Judiciary Branches of the States as an "arm" of the State Supreme Courts. After which State Constitutions were amended to transfer the admission and disciplining of lawyers and judges to the Judiciary Branch of Government of the individual States.⁸ Thus the legal profession became accountable to none but its own peer group, unlike any other profession in the land. These and similar activities, whether by design or otherwise, produced a consolidation of all government power in the hands of the legal profession resulting in the following:

1. The profession has acquired virtually unlimited political power in the land, and with that the ability to make laws to serve its personal profit rather than justice.

2. The profession has maximized its ability to acquire the highest possible share of the nation's wealth for itself.

3. The profession has collectively though not individually, become the most corrupt, least respected and according to its own surveys, least trusted profession in the land.¹²

4. The profession has (perhaps unwittingly), imposed on the nation enormous secondary costs essential for protection from the predatory nature of the profession.¹³

5. Members of the profession, sworn to uphold the Constitution and the concepts of representative government and separation of powers, have (perhaps unwittingly for many) violated their oath by creating and operating a government, substantially without either.

The pursuit of power and control of government by the legal profession is the natural expression of any group's attempt to maximize its own members power and financial rewards. That is human nature. That is why the Constitution is opposed to any "single interest group" acquiring such control, whether tinker, tailor, soldier, sailor, lawyer, doctor or native American chief. What has occurred though not a "conspiracy", does have precisely the same effects. In law that is known as a "constructive conspiracy."

These matters raise a number of critical questions: I. How and when did the profession acquire control? II. What are the abuses that allowed such control and the abuses that now afflict the nation? III. Why is the nation still generally unaware of the existence of the problem or how serious it is? IV. Who specifically is responsible? V. What can and should be done about it?

Subsequent articles will address these questions. Most important at this point is for the nation to become aware that as a direct result of the legal profession's unconstitutional control of all government an abundance of laws have been enacted, interpreted and enforced, for the personal profit of the profession, not justice. This imposes on the people of this nation a very high financial and emotional cost, as well as substantially depriving the people of their ability to exercise their full constitutional rights in any of the following areas:

1. Access constitutional remedies under the Bill of Rights, or 2. Gain reasonable access to the nation's courts, or 3. Exercise their first amendment right of free speech, or 4. Be free from a corrupt judiciary, or 5. Be free from the oppression of meritless lawsuits, or 6. Receive a fair trial, or 7. Live reasonably free from crime, or 8. Enjoy the right of self-determination through State constitutional amendments, or 9. Access affordable health care, or 10. Access safe and meaningful universal education, or 11. Access divorce without war, or 12. Receive fair treatment in bankruptcies, or 13. Receive fair treatment in the adoption of children, or 14. Be free from the criminalization of activities not criminal anywhere else in the civilized world, or 15. Be free from oppressive and unreasonable regulation imposed by bureaucrats immune from accountability and the democratic process 16. Have the President pick his judges and Supreme Court Justices free of unwarranted influence, as well as many other areas too numerous to mention.

Excluding lawyers, and any other "same hands" group that may emerge, from the Executive and Legislative branches will correct the problem. A similar problem existed in Britain in 1832.¹⁴ There the British Lords (called Peers), controlled both the House of Lords and the House of Commons until they were excluded by Law and/or practice. The solutions called for here will do the same for this nation as excluding Peers from the Commons did for the British. This writer is merely calling for action tried and true and the application of sound and well established historical legal precedent. The first step and purpose of these articles in achieving either solution, requires informing and educating the people about the nature and extent of the problem, and how to resolve it.

About the author. This writer became aware of the problem in 1985. The views presented here were first developed and articulated by this writer in 1989. This writer has become a constitutional scholar in pursuit of the justice of this cause. Sufficiently so that Professor Albert Blaustein,¹⁵ a world renowned constitutional lawyer, international consultant, and prolific author of numerous books on the law, having never before heard the proposals articulated here, was persuaded that this writer's views are sound and should prevail in a court of Law, and has said so in writing. This writer is President and co-founder of a national organization dedicated to the restoring of constitutional and representative government. This writer like James Madison, loves the law but is not a lawyer. This writer, like Alexander Hamilton, is an immigrant and a naturalized American citizen.

DID THE LEGISLATURE INTEND TO LICENSE HIGHWAY USE BY THE PUBLIC?

By Richard L. Koenig

A discussion is going on today about whether the Motor Vehicle Laws of Oregon, or any other state, were drafted with an intent to regulate and raise revenue from the general public. Those who contend that this is the case, will repeat the well worn language we've all been exposed to from high school on: "Driving is a privilege," which, of course, means a law somewhere, says that public servants down at the DMV can sell you the privilege, after you pass the tests. The problem with this approach to discussion is that some one is being quoted, who, in turn, quoted someone else. At some point rational people who intend to have a thoughtful discussion will remember, "Oh, that's second or third hand hearsay." Beyond the hearsay, approach used by those who contend that "everybody has to have a driver license"; there are not many rational arguments to support that contention.

On the other hand, there are several arguments that can be made which, while acknowledging the truth that "driving is a privilege", certainly do not mean that the legislature intended to license people universally, or generally, as a condition of using the highway for vehicular travel. It is interesting to note that those with what would appear to be the greatest financial stake in the discussion, the public servants who collect DMV fees, enforce motor vehicle laws and the "judges" who impose fines in traffic court, are the least likely to participate. When the question is placed on the table before one of these folks, the contribution they are usually going to make is, "It's all there in the statutes, go look it up yourself", which is exactly no contribution at all.

This article reviews several arguments in support of the contention that the legislature has never enacted a law subjecting the public to "privileged" highway use as a revenue-raising device, nor for their health, safety, and welfare. Hopefully this article will facilitate the ability of those who may decide that participation in this discussion is essential to a society that holds freedom, or self-determination as a cherished value.

This article cannot present all the evidence, nor even cite all relevant authorities in support of highway use by the public as a matter of right. That kind of effort would constitute volumes of material. It is hoped that the evidence and cited authorities in support of each of the arguments covered in this article will be regarded as keys, which may be used to unlock storehouses of information on the subject of the "liberty of locomotion." With Internet search engines at society's fingertips; these storehouses of information are only minutes or seconds away. Local law libraries and even the county library systems are just waiting to be used. There is a certain advantage to having a stack of open books on a table so that the investigator can flip back and forth between references without having to "close a window."

For convenient coffee table discussion, the several arguments will be designated as follows: Fundamental; Historic; Legislative Construction.

"Fundamental" is a term frequently applied to organizational documents like the "constitutions" of political bodies. The first sentence of the Oregon Constitution says that "... all power is inherent in the people..." and the reasons they instituted government in the first place were for their own "... peace, safety and happiness". What is not contained in this opening statement, nor anywhere else in the somewhat lengthy document, is a statement that the people intended to regulate or grant privileges to them.

From a purely logical, no frills, perspective, the creator of government, "the people," who "institute all free governments," cannot be less than, or subservient to, their own creation. The government that was created by the people for their own peace, safety, and happiness does what it is supposed to do, because certain individuals have stepped forward to serve the people's needs. Though becoming a less popular term in modern times, these individuals are known, traditionally, as "public servants." Imagine a public servant, or any other servant for that matter, proposing to take his master's money and, in exchange, granting the master a privilege to use his own "public highway." The concept that a public servant is endowed with the ability to grant the "privilege to drive" to anyone in the legal category, "the public," is known as an oxymoron, or things that can not exist in the same space at the same time because they are mutually exclusive.

Article I of Oregon's Constitution is known as the 'Bill of Rights'. The prominent location of the Oregon Bill of Rights is in contrast to the federal 'Bill of Rights,' which is referred to as "amendments," because it comes after the sections describing the limits of government. Section 34 of Oregon's upfront Bill of Rights prohibits slavery or involuntary servitude. Slavery and involuntary servitude exist when someone exerts a claim on the productive capacity of another. In the case of slavery, the claim may extend to complete control over the slave, replacing "free will" with the will of the master. When a public servant can demand the fruit of the public's labor in the form of mandatory fees before granting a privilege to come and go in the course of associating with friends and relatives, traveling to places of worship, or to seats of government to petition for redress to grievance, that is what slavery is. Slavery like this cannot exist in a society of free people who are equal in right, and in whom all power is inherent.

This simple, fundamental analysis is the most compelling argument that the people's delegated law makers have never intended to pass any law, which universally requires a "driver license" to use the highways for vehicular travel. Yes, but the other side of the argument will protest, if we do not license people, and restrict them by laws applicable to drivers, there will be chaos. Will there be such an assertion is irrelevant to the historic intent of the legislature, but the first response should be: If you found out tomorrow that the Vehicle Code was not written to govern you, would you suddenly be divested of your good common sense, of the physical ability or the respect you have for your fellow man, which all figure into how you use the public ways, roads and streets today? When confronted with this question, most people will admit that they would continue pretty much the same as before. Some may even say they might be a little more cautious, which is a good thing. Ours is a society founded on principles, including that everyone is presumed innocent until proven guilty. In the event that the "chaos" advocate claims to be a member of this society, he or she will have to conclude that everybody else will probably continue to use his or her vehicles responsibly as well.

THE ULTIMATE DELUSION

By: Stephen Ames

What people do not know is that the so called Founding Fathers and King George were working hand-in-hand to bring the people of America to their knees, to install a Central Government over them and to bind them to a debt that could not be paid. First off you have to understand that the UNITED STATES is a corporation and that it existed before the Revolutionary war. See Republics v. Sweers 1 Dallas 43. and 28 U.S.C. 3002 (15). The United States is not a land mass, it is a corporation. Now, you also have to realize that King George was not just the King of England, he was also the King of France. Treaty of Peace * U.S. 8 Statutes at Large 80. On January 22, 1783 Congress ratified a contract for the repayment of 21 loans that the UNITED STATES had already received dating from February 28, 1778 to July 5, 1782. Now the UNITED STATES Inc. owes the King money which is due January 1, 1788 from King George via France. King George funded both sides of the Revolutionary War.

Now the Articles of Confederation which were declared in force March 1, 1781 States in Article 12:

"All bills of credit emitted, monies borrowed, and debts contracted by, or under the authority of Congress, before the assembling of the United States, in pursuance of the present confederation, shall be deemed and considered a charge against the United States, for payment and satisfaction whereof the said United States and the public faith are hereby solemnly pledged."

The Articles of Confederation acknowledge the debt owed to King George.

Now after losing the Revolutionary War, even though the War was nothing more than a move to turn the people into debtors for the King, the conquest was not yet complete. Now the loans were coming due and so a meeting was convened in Annapolis, Maryland, to discuss the economic instability of the country under the Articles of Confederation. Only five States came to the meeting, but there is a call for another meeting to take place in Philadelphia the following year with the express purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation. On February 21, 1787 Congress gave approval of the meeting to take place in Philadelphia on May 14, 1787, to revise the Articles of Confederation. Something had to be done about the mounting debt. Little did the people know that the so-called founding fathers were going to reorganize the United States because it was Bankrupt.

On September 17, 1787 twelve State delegates approve the Constitution. The States have now become Constitutors. Constitutor: In the civil law, one who, by simple agreement, becomes responsible for the payment of another's debt. Blacks Law Dictionary 6th Ed. The States were now liable for the debt owed to the King, but the people of America were not because they were not a party to the Constitution because it was never put to them for a vote.

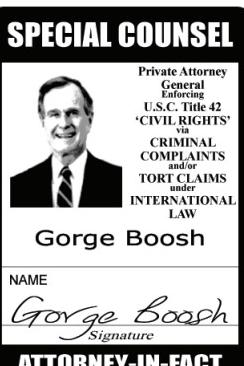

See APFN web page <http://www.apfn.org/apfn/money.htm>

On August 4th, 1790 an Act was passed which was Titled:-An Act making provision for the payment of the Debt of the United States. This can be found at 1 U.S. Statutes at Large pages 138-178. This Act for all intents and purposes abolished the States and Created the Districts. If you don't believe it look it up. The Act set up Federal Districts, here in Pennsylvania we got two. In this Act each District was assigned a portion of the debt. The next step was for the states to reorganize their governments which most did in 1790. This had to be done because the States needed to legally bind the people to the debt. The original State Constitutions were never submitted to the people for a vote. So the governments wrote new constitutions and submitted them to people for a vote thereby binding the people to the debts owed to Great Britain. The people became

THE END OF JUSTICE

By Janet C. Phelan
The American's Bulletin

The stories below have a common thread—that certain parties are not receiving justice in the American judicial system, but are, in fact, being targeted by that very system. In that regard, the caveats of "equal protection under the law" and "justice is blind" are revealed as hollow and false. What is increasingly apparent is that the laws apply to some people and others are simply out of luck.

As America reels under the assault by the U.S. government, via the Patriot Act, the Military Commissions Act and the revocation of habeas corpus, these stories reveal a similar theme—certain people, for reasons either obvious or obscure, no longer have legal protection for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Life (and death) on the plantation has again become a reality, 21st century style.

Item #1: Corinne Bramson never received notice that her grandson was applying for guardianship of the elderly woman. In January of 2007, Chad Tendrich went into court, ex parte, making allegations that his grandmother was incapacitated and being "influenced" by one of Bramson's daughters, Bonnie Reiter. With no prior knowledge or legal notice of a proceeding which robbed her of her rights, Bramson was put under guardianship by Judge Harrison, a retired judge who was pinch-hitting for the regular judge.

Under guardianship, a person's rights and funds are transferred to the "care" of the guardian. The guardian then exercises the transferred "rights" to issue checks, make investments and may make life and death decisions for the alleged incapacitated person.

When Chad Tendrich applied for the guardianship of Bramson, he neglected to mention to the court that his mother, Jackie Tendrich, also a daughter of Corinne Bramson, was under active investigation by the Palm Beach Police for stealing money from Bramson. While the Palm Beach County Sheriff's office found probable cause to pursue Jackie in this matter, the guardianship essentially derailed the charges. The State's attorney was to later drop the case, because Corinne Bramson had died.

A professional guardianship company, CARESOURCE, took dominion over Bramson, and the guardianship quickly turned both expensive and deadly. The guardianship and Bramson lasted twelve weeks. In the last two weeks, Bramson was placed into hospice, with a bogus diagnosis of colon cancer. In fact, Bramson was never diagnosed with colon cancer. TAB has retrieved the medical evaluation done by Dr. Towbin, which lists a diagnosis of colitis, not cancer. Mysteriously, Dr. Towbin's diagnosis was never submitted to hospice, nor was the lab work from Delray Medical Center, which confirmed the diagnosis of ulcerated colitis. Nevertheless, hospice accepted Bramson into their program, without a diagnosis of terminal illness, where she was plied with morphine. She succumbed in ten days.

Twelve weeks of guardianship cost her estate over $250,000. The guardianship also cost Corinne Bramson her life.

Item #2: On April 30, 2008, Commissioner Joan Burgess made legal history in a probate court proceeding in Riverside County Superior Court (RIP 080974). In an act that potentially revolutionizes the very structure of our legal proceedings and constitutional protections, Commissioner Joan Burgess overturned a decision made in an entirely different county, by Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge Lynda Lefkowitz, two years prior, without the issue ever appearing on Burgess' docket and without considering evidence or witness testimony.

The implications of Burgess's act are earthshaking. Let's look at her violation of legal jurisdictional protocols and see how this could play out for you, or me, or anyone of us....

Say, for example, that you are accused of shoplifting in one county. The judge hears the testimony and tenders a decision that you are not guilty. However, if the shopkeeper is dissatisfied with that verdict, he could, under Commissioner Joan Burgess' practice of the law, simply run next door to a judge in a neighboring county and whisper in his ear, or maybe drop a few bucks in his coffers, and suddenly, you have been found guilty in the eyes of the law, without the matter ever being called in front of that judge.

A comparable scenario actually happened on April 30, 2008 in Department 10 of Riverside Superior Court, 4050 E. Main Street, at 8:40 a.m., over the continued protest of a party who reminded the judge that she had no jurisdiction to review or revoke a decision in a separate county court. Burgess responded by threatening the party with termination of the telephonic which states that, if the State Bar hearing committee recommends disbarment, the lawyer in question is automatically declared inactive. Fine contends that this law is unconstitutional, for it allows no due process hearing and no notice of charges.

Fine's case is a case of "first instance," and has repercussions for lawyers (and their clients) across the country. In an interview on June 4, 2008, Fine stated, "this goes to the heart of the right to petition the government to redress grievances." He further stated that "the State Bar is trying to stop lawyers from doing their job."

Item #4: Claudia Montelione, a notary in Lackawanna County, Pennsylvania, is now sitting in Dauphin County Jail after a complex series of maneuvers by the State Attorney General's office, in collusion with Dauphin County Judge Lawrence F. Clark.

Montelione, who was doing business under the name "Penny Pincher Express," received notification from the Consumer Protection Bureau of the Attorney General's office to turn over her records to that office, including her personal and public files. Montelione responded with a letter requesting clarification. Specifically, she wanted to know why the Bureau wanted her files, and whether the investigation was civil or criminal. She also wanted to know under what authority the Bureau was conducting the investigation. The Bureau responded with a subpoena, stating she was non-responsive.

Montelione then issued a CAFV to Kathryn H. Silcox, Deputy AG in the Pennsylvania AG's office. By failing to respond, the Attorney General went into default on January 21, 2008.

It should be noted that the Attorney General of the Great State of Pennsylvania does not have an oath of office on file.

The government charged ahead. In a hearing on March 4, 2008, Judge Lawrence Clark clearly prosecuted the case from the bench, while the Deputy Attorney General and Prosecutor Michael C. Gerdes sat silent (Silcox had substituted out). While Montelione appeared with counsel, that counsel was disqualified by Judge Clark, who threatened counsel with the sheriff if he if she didn't "stop talking" and protesting that the commissioner was violating her rights.

Item #3: Richard Fine was one of the most awarded and honored attorneys in Southern California. A graduate of the University of Chicago School of Law, he went on to receive his PhD from the London School of Economics. He was certified to practice law at the Hague and had served on the Los Angeles Consular Corps, as well as working for the U.S. Department of Justice, early on in his career. He had specialized as a taxpayer's advocate attorney and had become quite successful at suing various government entities.

He uncovered the fact that the judges in L.A. Superior Court were receiving kick-backs from the County and deciding cases against the County in favor of the County. When he began to challenge the jurisdiction of the judges to hear cases against the County, The State Bar of California summarily declared him inactive.

The opinion by the State Bar is archived on the California State Bar website, which uses the "moral turpitude" clause to support the Bar's decision to remove this celebrated attorney from the practice of law. Essentially, Richard Fine was declared ineligible for "filing motions," and utilizing the justice system in a manner which inflamed the State Bar (and very likely the judges getting the kick backs).

On May 2, 2008, Fine filed a case in U.S. District Court to have the moral turpitude law declared unconstitutional, and to strike down the law

THE DRILL-NOTHING CONGRESS

China and Cuba drill 60 miles from Key West, Fla.

By INVESTOR'S BUSINESS DAILY June 09, 2008

Energy: The average price for regular gas hits over $4 a gallon over the weekend. Gas prices have risen 75% since Nancy Pelosi took over. Where's the energy independence Democrats promised two years ago?

In November of 2006, House Speaker-elect Nancy Pelosi issued a press release touting the Democrats' "common-sense plan to help bring down skyrocketing gas prices." She accused the oil companies of "price gouging."

The price of gasoline when the Democrats took control of Congress was around $2.25 per gallon. The average price of regular gas crept over the $4-per-gallon barrier over the weekend, as measured by AAA and the Oil Price Information Service.

That represents a more than 75% increase in the retail price of a gallon of gasoline on Pelosi's watch.

Call it the "Pelosi premium" we're all now paying.

It's a problem driven by domestic supply restrictions imposed by the Democrat Congress in the face of growing worldwide demand.

The Democrats preach energy independence while they do everything in their power to prevent it. If the American people truly want change, this would be it.

A Gallup poll released in May showed that 57% of the American people wanted the U.S. to drill in coastal and wilderness areas. The percentage of Americans who bought Pelosi's line about price gouging fell from 34% in May 2007 to 20% in May 2008.

It could be a winning issue for the Republicans and John McCain. More than 15 billion barrels of oil have been sent down the Alaskan pipeline from Prudhoe Bay, some 60 miles to the west of ANWR, over the past three decades, much more than the six months' supply expected in the beginning by those who predicted a similar environmental disaster there.

The local caribou and other critters have thrived. Yet, Pelosi and the Democrats want to keep ANWR's estimated 10.6 billion barrels of oil off the market and out of our gas tanks.

Buried in a Department of Interior Appropriations bill passed in December 2007 was an amendment proposed by Rep. Mark Udall, D-Colo., passed by a 219-215 vote in June, that prevented the establishment of regulations for leasing lands to drill for oil shale.

The Western U.S. is estimated to have reserves of a trillion barrels (yes, that's the real number) trapped in porous shale rock, an amount three times the oil reserves of Saudi Arabia.

On May 15, 2008, the Senate Appropriations Committee in a 15-14 party line vote rejected an amendment by Sen. Wayne Allard, R-Colo., to allow oil shale drilling and overturn the Udall moratorium.

The U.S. Congress has voted consistently to keep 85% of America's offshore oil and gas off-limits, while China and Cuba drill 60 miles from Key West, Fla.

The U.S. Minerals Management Service says that the restricted areas contain 86

KNOW YOUR TRANSFORMING WORLD

CYBORGENICS
The Merging of Man & Machine

Tracing the emerging global culture amidst the approaching technological convergence

Ryan Andrew Hanson

Cyborgenics confronts us with past, present, and highly possible—if not inevitable—future realities as we observe a trend in fast becoming one with our incredibly shrinking machines seeking to improve upon our humanity.

An extraordinary presentation/exposé of our transformation towards a global culture...with rare insight into the true connection between biology, belief, and the postmodern man.

Hanson provides a fresh, relevant, yet concise summary of key issues we face today — in a way we can better grasp as well as simplify for others.

Cyborgenics is a must read for those whose hearts are set towards influencing their world for a sustainable, beneficial future.

Historical Lessons in Terms and Events

By Sharon Lee Shields

Law Enforcement Official vs. Peace Officer

By, Sharon Lee; Shields

"My lessons are reflections of current government policies and procedures, and the consequences that they have on our lives; I believe that all men and women on the outside of the political prisons and on the inside of the political prisons deserve access to current government policies and procedures because 'knowledge' is truth and are powerful tools for changing collective consciousness just by thinking differently about a current event offers us opportunities to new attitudes to react differently about a current event that was historically cast in stone, by shattering a myth it exposes a dangerous political circumstance such as the truth about "law enforcement", where today I'd much rather live in an attitude of being a "prisoner of faith and hope" than exist in an attitude of being a "prisoner of fear and despair."

—Sharon Lee; Shields

Dishonorable Law Enforcement Officials

Americans are living in fear for their safety and lives, along with that of their families and animals over a rise in current "law enforcement officials" abusive and destructive patterns and practices.

Law Enforcement Officials are de facto (void of fact) officials, (research official vs. officer) having replaced America's de jure Peace Officers, readily evidenced in the blue and white vehicles which are representative of displaying United Nations (U.N.) colors on our land which is in disharmony and conflict with substantive laws and our Old Glory colors of "red, white and blue."

Law Enforcement Officials are impersonating Peace Officers because they dishonor us and ignore original treaties, the Bill of Rights and Declaration of Independence; most evident when Americans' are pulled over along side roads or highways surrounded by several U.N. Official cars for perhaps as little as a correction of a steering wheel. Law enforcement officials are brainwashed and conditioned well in advance of climbing into one of those new blue and white U.N vehicles, hitting the streets searching for void of fact and authority private law breakers!

Each Law Enforcement Official is trained on America's soil and sanctioned by U.N 'blue and white' colors, having mandatory procedural processes to fill revenue quotas, in other words create and collect money! Americans have no idea of the maze of mandatory agencies, classes and programs they're subjected to for a single administrative violation.

I compare these times with the movie "The Mask of Zorro", where a rogue military, dressed in de jure military uniform had been bought and paid for by private government Officials (not Officers); and while impersonating the de jure military it gained control over the people. Some tolerated THEIR presence, while others realized THEIR dishonesty, ruthlessness and evil presence and avoided THEM for fear of being killed for their indifference and knowledge.

Both the military and government Officials were nothing more than thieves and renegades driven by power and greed, stealing gold belonging to California people; working men, women and children in gold mines, clubbing, enslaving and starving them to rags, physical exhaustion and then death, ultimately planning annihilation of all the cultures of people after private agendas had been fulfilled. Any bells ringing here?

Food for Thought: Natural resources of a country belong to the people; not the government.

Alaska clearly operates in the capacity of STATE OF ALASKA (Private Corporation), and is rich in examples of 'LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS' corruption, extortion, fraud, tyranny and unbridled brutality both in and out of court, on all administrative levels, as exemplified:

LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS travel in packs and "if" pulled over while traveling by one of THEM expect swarms of U.N. LAW OFFICIALS to show up, like attacking angry bees. THEY travel in packs because each situation "is" as the PACK tells it; because EACH ONE is a witness to what "you" have done to them!

Near Fairbanks a middle aged woman, peaceful, void of legal contact or trouble, lived on her own off the beaten path (common in Alaska). She had two big mixed bread dogs that she loved dearly as her friends and companions. She drove an old pickup into town twice a month to pick up mail and buy groceries. Late one afternoon she loaded her dogs in the back of the pickup and headed for town. The non-vicious dogs were happy, wagging their tails, going for a joy ride. Each dog loved people and was accustomed to staying in the back of the pickup at both stops. However, on this day on the way to town, traveling on Hwy 3, she leaned over to grab something off the floor, swerving slightly, not enough to even go off the road; but immediately a LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL pulled tight to her truck's bumper with sirens blaring and lights flashing. When it was safe, she pulled over.

Her two dogs were wagging their tails and happy, waiting to greet the OFFICIAL. While searching for usual documents the OFFICIAL would demand, she heard shots being fired and then her dogs screaming and thrashing around in the bed of the pick up. The LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL had slaughtered (murdered) both her dogs.

Crazy with confusion she jumping out of her pickup trying to climb over the side of the pickup to get to her dogs; not posing any threat to the OFFICIAL; hysterically wild with grief she tried reaching for one dogs that was still alive screaming a dying gasp. The LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL immediately demanded the women stand still, don't move, put your hands above your head, but the women couldn't hear HIS demands because her mind was stunned and in shock trying to grasp that her dogs had just been slaughtered for an unjustified invasion. The OFFICIAL clubbed the woman, pushed her to the ground; face and mouth smashed into Alaska's volcanic ash-dirt; and then transported her, dazed and grief stricken to jail, leaving her pick up with her two dead dogs along side the highway. When the case was brought to an alleged trial court (pathetic disgraces) the court failed to inquire "why" she was pulled over in the first place; but concluded that jailing the woman was justifiable for resisting arrest, as the LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL explained; and HE was also justified in slaughtering her two dogs, her family, because they posed a threat to HIM; a common scenario and excuse well exercised in Alaska and all over North America.

In Wasilla a 911 call was made after a family dispute broke out. The young daughter had a female Pit Bull companion with new puppies. The female Pit Bull dog was known throughout the neighborhood as sweet and non-aggressive, even with puppies, the dog never showed aggression to anyone not even strangers when playing outdoors with the young girl.

Busting into the home the LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS first shot and killed the Pit Bull mother and all of the puppies while nursing the puppies in a contained big box. The young girl was hysterical which resulted in permanent trauma from the OFFICIALS' unjust murdering of her companion and friend. Again, according to the court the timid and sweet mother dog and her puppies slaughter in their own box were justifiable because they posed a threat to the LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL. I often question "why" OFFICIALS entering domestic situations don't first demand that family pets (dogs) be contained in a separate room? Then, I realized that question contained common sense; which is not protocol or required, anymore.

Alaska communities quickly learned of the two scenarios, and it became evident that it wasn't safe to take family pets on joy rides, anymore. Still, one night a man who lives outside of Willow loaded up his two 95% Wolf dogs that were long time family pets, begging to go for a ride in the back of the pickup to the post office as they were accustomed to doing for years. So, the man gave-in to the two dogs and his fourteen year old son all left the ranch and were traveling on Hwy 3 heading for the post office. The family was very well versed in the patterns and practices of LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS of today, to the point that a rule had been made that calling 911 was NOT an option in their home. Instead a list of family, friends and neighbors phone numbers was hung next to the phone to use in case of any emergency.

Traveling the speed limit the man over corrected the steering wheel only to find his truck immediately tailgated by a female LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL with lights flashing and sirens blaring. In a quandary over how to handle the volatile situation because he knew his dogs would be shot just because of their breed. The man and his son discussed a plan to defuse the dangerous situation: he would pull to the side of the road, jump out and demand the two dogs go to the son's side of the truck, to an opened door where the son would coax the dogs to jump into the pickup; while the man maintained conversation with the OFFICIAL explaining to HER his plan to save his dogs, begging HER NOT to shoot the family dogs.

The intensity at the scene by the drama of the OFFICIAL escalated with loud mega phone demands, confusion and negative energy that filled the air; fear escalated in the man over the danger his dogs and now son was in. Their plan went into effect, the man got out of his pickup before the OFFICIAL got out of HER car, reached over to the dogs trying to calm them while ordering them to the son's side of the pickup; but the dogs stayed with the man, smelling and searching his man trying to pick up on the danger. His plan failed. So, quickly, to save his dogs he ordered his son back into the truck, opened his side of the four-door pickup, grabbed each dog and threw them into the back seat against their will, slamming the door shut behind them.

All the while the LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIAL repeatedly tasered the man's back and sides to the point that one taser gun broke and a second was provided by the second U.N. OFFICIAL who showed up. The dogs went ballistic inside the pickup because the two OFFICIALS continued shouting the usual demands to get down on the ground, hands above your head; spread your legs, and physically knocked the man around. The man was big and strong and by sheer will and determination to save his dogs, his body held up during the intense violent tasering until he got his dogs to safety, then he collapsed onto the ground. The son stunned by what he would witnessed jumped out of the truck demanding THEY quit tasering his father; but that too escalated into the OFFICIALS' drawing and pointing their guns at the fourteen-year-old boy.

The boy had called his mother from a cellular phone and she drove up in time to see guns pointed at her son and her husband pinned to the ground. His jeans and white tee shirt covered in blood, with huge red welts the size of tennis balls protruding all over his back and sides, with the family dogs clawing and ripping at the doors of the pickup trying to get out to protect the family.

The man was arrested, customary revenue creating and collecting practices. Many showed up to the hearing to support the man in the absurdity and injustice at the so-called Palmer court, which was/is nothing more than a dog and pony show of revenue collecting. The U.N. OFFICIAL wasn't charged with anything because SHE claimed that SHE was threatened and defended herself. What was his charge?

Why, resisting arrest, of course!

What reason did THEY give for stopping the man in the first place? It was explained that THEY don't need a reason to stop anyone, it's their right!

Last scenario: A handicapped man, very active and verbal in exposing Alaska's LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS for THEIR less than ethical, less than constitutional practices, was pulled over late one evening in what is known as the Hope Turn Out, and immediately surrounded by several U.N. LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS who shot and killed the handicapped man in his car. The LAW ENFORCEMENT GANG claimed the shooting (murder) was justifiable because the man (unable to even get out of his car) was a threat to THEM. ALL WERE ACQUITTED OF ANY WRONG DOING!

For those inquiring just how dangerous and out of control has U.N. LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS become to the peace, safety and stability of our communities and country, they need not wonder any longer because for the few scenarios described from Alaska there are thousands, even millions more untold and have been an undisclosed common practice all over North America.

The foreign "colors" on the vehicles, the wild brutality and irrational violations of rights, breaking and entering void of lawful (codified law) authority are all evidence of a foreign jurisdictions (uncodified law) operating simultaneously by a legal system governing a specific group of persons: LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICIALS.

Do legal systems of uncodified administrative rules, codes and statutes have lawful authority over us? Research the terms "legal vs. lawful" and you will have your answer.

Many inquired about my opinion on "Barack Obama's" choice for a running mate. I have only one thought: There is only running one who has not disgraced and betrayed us: Ron Paul; so pray that Obama picks Ron Paul for his running mate, and then vote for him. Vote for Ron Paul, anyway!

TAKING DOWN THE WHISTLEBLOWERS BREAK HER HEART, BREAK HER WILL

By Janet C. Phelan
The American's Bulletin

Joseph Carley probably never had a chance. The only and much desired child of medical whistleblower extraordinaire, Dr. Rebecca Carley, he became a pawn in a game to destroy his mother's career and her efforts to expose the dangers of vaccinations and other government programs.

Rebecca Carley wanted a family. She was forty-two years old, on her second marriage and her "biological clock" was definitely ticking. She had come from a lower middle class family and had made it up the educational rungs to graduate from medical school on her own accomplishments, not family reputation or money. After graduating from the SUNY Downstate, she began to research fetal echocardiography, which resulted in the publication of a groundbreaking article in the Journal of Clinical Ultrasound, June 1981 (Vol. 9, p 223-229). At that point, her entrance into the exclusive ranks of medical students became a slam-dunk. She graduated with honors from SUNY Health Science Center at Brooklyn in 1987.

Early on in her career as a surgeon, she became aware that things weren't quite right with the "white coats." She began to separate herself from the flock, and started a public access show in New York in 1997, entitled "What's Ailing America?" She covered such topics as vaccine induced diseases, police corruption and corruption in the courts.

But she wanted a family, and ended up investing tens of thousands of dollars in fertility treatments. When Joey was born in 1996, she was overjoyed.

Her marriage, however, was in trouble. She soon separated from her husband, Michael Carley, who had become physically abusive to her. It should be noted that Rebecca Carley states that Michael started the physical abuse when Joey was only six months old, stating "he did not want me to do these shows." It was on Father's Day, of 1999 when her son was raped and sodomized, apparently by his own father.

As usual, Rebecca picked up Joey from his father that day. Her son, then aged three, began to complain that his father had "punched me" in the butt, and had "stuck a magic marker up" his butt. Alarmed, Rebecca turned on the video camera.

The footage shows Joey Carley, obviously traumatized and terrified, telling his mother that he was assaulted by his father. Rebecca took her son to the emergency room, only to find the doctor on call indifferent and incompetent. The rape kit was thrown into the garbage and never evaluated. Concerned that the doctor was not adequately documenting the assault, Rebecca took one photograph of her son's rear, showing contusions around the area. It was this act of documenting the abuse that was used to sever Rebecca from her son.

Rebecca Carley had already encountered "misbehavior" by the justice system when she had attempted to get the police to protect her from her violent spouse. The first time she called the police, they showed up and asked her "what she did to upset" her abusive husband, shifting the onus of responsibility on to the victim. In June of 1998, according to Rebecca, the police finally arrested him when he beat her up in front of her young son; in that instance, she had visible bruising. The District Attorney, Dennis Dillon (more on him later) dropped all charges against Michael Carley. He also was later to drop all charges against Michael Carley for allegedly raping his own son, even though Michael failed the polygraph.

Child Protective Services paid a visit to Rebecca and her son the morning after the hospital visit, along with Sex Crimes Detective Meehan.

Later that day Rebecca took Joey to his private pediatrician, Dr. Monica Melamedoff, who also documented Joey's anal abrasions, as well as a red throat and a rectal irritation. Joey also told Dr. Melamedoff that "Daddy stuck a magic marker" in his buttock.

CPS Agent Wilkins informed Dr. Carley on Wednesday, June 23, 1999 that there would be a hearing in Family Court at two p.m. to address Michael Carley's actions. She showed up without an attorney, and was informed that the neglect hearing was about her, not Mr. Carley. Judge Lawrence determined that her actions of taking the photograph was "bizarre" and further deemed that since the visitation was "supervised" (and it was not supervised), no sexual abuse could have occurred. Mention was made of Dr. Carley's views against vaccinations.

Rebecca Carley was subsequently charged with child abuse and child neglect for the act of taking one photograph of her child's buttocks. Nassau County Judge Richard Lawrence ignored the fact that, as a mandated reporter for child abuse, Dr. Carley was operating within the law by taking one photograph to support her claims of abuse, and proceeded to find her guilty as charged.

As it turned out, this one photograph was the only one in focus of Joey's wounds. All the photographs taken by Dr. Sofola at Nassau County Medical Center were out of focus and thus not admissible as evidence and neither was, of course, the discarded rape kit.

Dr. Carley was able to achieve a protective order against Michael Carley, granted by the Judge. However, her own attorney, Mr. Cammarata, then went against Dr. Carley's wishes and in Lawrence's court on July 29, 1999, agreed to start visitation with the father while the order of protection was in effect. After Mr. Cammarata acted against Joey's best interests, he then informed the court that he would not be able to represent Dr. Carley any further, on the bizarre grounds that he used the same pediatrician as his client.

Judge Lawrence was later to incarcerate Dr. Carley for criminal contempt for her telling the judge not to yell at her. Judge Lawrence also refused to allow Joey to be evaluated by a sex abuse validator and refused to refer the case to the DA for prosecution, even after the foster mother filed an affidavit with the court revealing that Joey had also told her that his father had raped him.

The foster mother, Ruth Porcaro, provided the court a clear and concise statement of what Joey Carley told her had happened to him at the hands of Michael Carley, as well her own observations:

"When Joseph first came to my home he was traumatized," she wrote in a statement to Family Court of Nassau County on September 1, 1999. She reported Joey as saying to her, "My Daddy hurt my butt," and "My daddy punched my butt," and other, more graphically disturbing statements.

Rebecca Carley's divorce from Michael Carley was granted on the basis that he abused her. Nevertheless, on October 4, 2000, Judge Lawrence placed Joey Carley into the custody of Michael Carley, whom Joey Carley claims sexually assaulted him. Judge Richard Lawrence put the abused child into the hands of the abuser, and continued to sit on the bench and to decide the fate of other families at risk.

But Rebecca Carley is a fighter, and she wasn't going to give up that easy. She took the case to appeals, where she (and Joey) again lost.

Sharon Commissiong, Deputy Majority Counsel of Nassau County Legislature, wrote a letter to Elliot Spitzer, who was State Attorney General at that time, declaring that this case needed his investigation. In an act consonant with his moral turpitude, Spitzer turned around and moved to dismiss Rebecca Carley's federal civil rights lawsuit against Judge Lawrence.

During a supervised visit with Joey in October of 2003, he began to cry and beg her to help him. Immediately, her visits with Joey were pulled by Nassau Supervised Visitation. Shortly thereafter, she was accused of telling her son to have sexual contact with Michael Carley.

She took her story to the airwaves, and in late summer of 1999, she went onto her public access television show and disclosed what had happened to her and her son. District Attorney Denis Dillon (who previously cut Michael Carley loose from abuse charges) then forwarded a copy of her show to the New York Medical Board, who initiated proceedings against Dr. Carley to have her medical license revoked. The charges? That she had a "delusion of conspiracy."

We have seen, in the cases of Eric Shine, Susan Lindauer and other whistleblowers exactly the same forces at work. If a person should fall victim to collusion by state agencies and is robbed of his/her rights and should have then have the courage to protest against this, that person is often charged with being "paranoid" or having a "conspiracy mindset."

Curiously, at the very time that Rebecca Carley was fighting for her son's safety, a law was introduced into the New York State Assembly addressing a similar issue. Law 542 made it mandatory for the Board for Professional Medical Conduct to notify law enforcement of alleged criminal offenses, should the Board receive complaints of a criminal nature. This law was introduced due to reports, received by the Board in 1999, that a prominent pediatric neurologist, Dr. Phillip Riback, was allegedly sexually abusing children. The Board did not disclose this to the police, and it was not until 2002, when a parent of one of the allegedly abused children brought the matter directly to the police, that the doctor was arrested and charged. Riback was sentenced to 48 years in prison, on twenty-eight counts of sexually abusing boys. The new law substantially expanded the understanding that medical practitioners, including the Board for Professional Medical Conduct, have an ethical and legal necessity to report crimes of sexual abuse. This fact also provides troubling questions as to how Dr. Carley could have been charged with abuse for her act of documenting the abuse of her own son.

Richard Lawrence, who lost his seat on the bench in a recent election, is now practicing law in Merrick, New York. In an interview on June 17, 2008, he declined to explain any of his actions to this reporter, stating he was disallowed by the "canon of ethics" to comment on his decision.

It has been five years since Dr. Rebecca Carley has seen her son. Her radio shows are now aired on BBS radio, which is internet, and on Republic Broadcast Network, which is both internet and also aired on thirty terrestrial stations. She has become a potent voice in the outcry against forced vaccinations, and through her diligent research, she has been able to reverse many autoimmune diseases caused by vaccines.

This past Mother's Day found Rebecca Carley in the company of friends. It was a day of sorrow for her, not rejoicing. Her voice, which is the voice of wisdom and protest, has become very strong. However, she knows that her own son has fallen prey to the very forces that she speaks so powerfully against. And while she attempts to inform and protect all of us from the dangers of the shadow government, she has paid the highest price for her courage.

THE HITLER POEMS

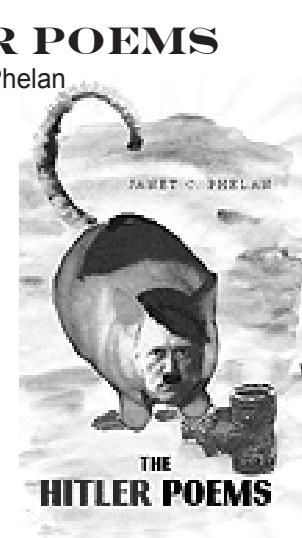

By Janet C. Phelan

These poems depict a journey through a dark landscape, where the political and personal are fused into a geography of disinformation, sex, betrayal and deadly technology.

Phelan has produced verbal "snapshots" of a subterranean war-- with fronts in Los Angeles as well as Fallujah-- where the only defense is one's integrity and the stakes may be life itself.

PRISON BONDS, CORPORATIONS & STOCK COMPANIES MO

By Jean Keating
Re-edited by Chris Bono
The American's Bulletin

This slightly edited 2004 info/article is presented herein for your edification and is not to be construed as legal advice, but merely educational information only. You have a right to know, of the commercial programs and schemes your government has instituted without your consent...to your economic detriment, but rather to their financial greedy gain and that of the corporations, stock companies and the realestate investment scheme(s) as well. This article is not error free! Proceed at your own risk!!

Why is privatizing prisons so appealing to federal, state, & local governments? As the Nation put it: "The selling point was simple: Private companies could build & run prisons cheaper than the governments. Unfettered American Capitalism would produce a better fetter, saving cash-strapped states millions of dollars each year" while simultaneously generating huge profits. The Nation explains how this miracle would be accomplished. "Private prisons receive a guaranteed [per diem] fee for each prisoner, regardless of the actual costs. Each dime they don't spend on food or medical care [for prisoners] or on wages & training for the guards is a dime they can pocket." Most guards in public prisons belong to the LEOU, which is part of the American Federation of State, County, & Municipal Employees AFSCME. I have a pointed question for you. Why aren't we as principals on the Private side of the accounting cycle using our Exemption Priority to discharge all this Public Debt?

Laying the foundation

By legal definition, all of your Federal & State 'Statutes' are Bonds or Obligations of Record & are represented in the courtroom by the Recognizance Bond, which is a Bond of Record or Obligation for the payment of debt. The courts are operating under Statute Law. A 'Statute' is defined in black's 4th edition revised as a kind of bond or obligation of record, being an abbreviation for 'statute merchant' or 'statute staple.'

'Statute merchant' is defined as a security for a debt acknowledged to be due, entered into before the chief magistrate of some trading town, by which not only the body of the debtor might be imprisoned, & his goods seized in satisfaction of the debt, but also his lands might be delivered to the creditor till out of the rents & profits of them the debt be satisfied. This was also called a Pocket Judgment.

Statute Staple - a 1353 statute establishing procedure for settling disputes among merchants who traded in staple towns. The statute helped merchants receive swift judgment for debt. Cf. STATUTE MERCHANT. 2. A bond for commercial debt. A statute staple gave the lender a possessory right in the land of a debtor who failed to repay a loan.

"A popular form of security after 1285 . . . was the . . . 'statute staple' - whereby the borrower could by means of a registered contract charge his land & goods without giving up possession; if he failed to pay, the lender became a tenant of the land until satisfied . . .

the borrower under a statute or recognizance remained in possession of his land, & it later became a common practice under the common-law forms of mortgage likewise to allow the mortgagor to remain in possession as a tenant at will or at sufferance of the mortgage." J.H. Baker, An introduction to English Legal History 354 (3rd edition 1990).

Prison Bonds or what?

Recognition - a bond or obligation of record binding a person to some act as to appear in court & subject to forfeit money if obligation is not fulfilled. Fifa = Fifa, short for the Latin phrase fieri facias ("let it be made . . .") was a court (execution) to the sheriff to levy on (Take) the property of a debtor in order to satisfy a judgment (see judgment & execution dockets, above). The sheriff might typically keep track of fifas in a Sheriff's Fifa Docket Book. Usually written on a fill-in-the-blank form, a fifa names the parties to the court judgment & the value of property to be taken to satisfy the judgment. On the back, the sheriff or his deputies annotate their actions in carrying out the order. The fifas were to be returned to the court which issued them & the actions annotated on the Judgment Docket. Theoretically, the docket books should contain everything that was noted on the fifas.

I have been doing more research on our prison system via the internet & have found out some interesting things, regarding what is really going on in the courtroom. The court is looking for an acceptance & acceptor under UCC 3-410, as the Principal has the primary obligation to pay or discharge any instrument presented for acceptance. Since they are presenting a Bill of Exchange [indictment] for acceptance, this is called an acceptance for honor, which involves a negotiable instrument especially a bill of exchange [indictment] that has been accepted for payment. The complaint, information, or indictment is a 3 party Draft, Commercial paper, or Bill of Exchange under Article 3 of the UCC. The Grand Jury Foreman is the Drawer or Maker of the Indictment by his signature, the Defendant/ Debtor or Strawman is the Drawee & the State is the Payee & the live man is the Payor. What they are doing in the courtroom is all commercial; this is in conformity to 27 CFR.

If you don't accept the charge or presentment you are in dishonor for non-acceptance under UCC 3-505(c) & 3-501 (2)(a)(b). Acceptance is the drawer's signed engagement to honor the draft as presented. It must be written on the draft, & may consist of his signature alone. It becomes operative when completed by delivery or notification UCC 3-410. You are the fiduciary trustee of the strawman, which is a Cestui Que Trust; in this capacity you have the responsibility to discharge all his debts, by operation of law. You are also the principal or asset holder on the private side of the accounting ledger; you are holding the exemption necessary to discharge the debt. When they monetize debt they must have a principal, capital & interest is what circulates as principal & is called revenue or re-income. Principal is where venue lies.

Revenue is a Tax debt or Tax bills. All bills when presented represent revenue, interest, capital, or accruals circulating from you as the principal, when it is returned back to you as capital or interest it is called income or in-coming. This method of accounting is called the 'Accrual Accounting Method' & is represented by debits & credits. Debits are assets, credits are liabilities. The credits & liabilities have to be in balance; this is accomplished through double book-keeping entries.

Corporations work on the Fiscal Accounting Cycle because they operate using commercial debt, we, as owner principals, work on the General Calendar Accounting Year or Cycle.

NY City has a $6.6 billion dollar deficit, this deficit represents unredeemed debt on the credit side of the accrual accounting system & cannot be executed to the debit side of accrual accounting ledger, except through the principal's exemption. NY has therefore put its bond underwriting business up for bid and means that NY will issue $ 6.6 billion in bonds & pay underwriters over $30 million in fees in the next fiscal year alone. Lehman Brothers Bank will underwrite NY's $6.6 billion deficit. An underwriter is an Insurer or one who buys stock from the issuer with intent to resell it to the public or an entity or person, especially an investment banker, who guarantees the sale of newly issued securities by purchasing all or part of the shares for resale to the public. Why aren't we as principals on the Private side of the accounting cycle using our Exemption Priority to discharge all this Public Debt?

The Big Kahuna Prison Corp

The Corrections Corporation of America [CCA] owns most of your prison systems & sells its stock & shares on the New York Stock Exchange; the major stock holder is the Paine Webber Group; have a Dunn Bradstreet rating & are headquartered in Nashville. CCA later merged into PRISON REALTY TRUST [PZN], a Real Estate Investment Trust [REIT] (pronounced 'reet') that is exempt from corporate taxes, if it meets certain conditions. This was a $4 Billion transaction; companies acquired U.S. Corrections Corporation. One important condition is that it distributes 95% of its income to shareholders, a provision making REITs attractive to investors. Prison Realty Trust failed to meet those conditions with cash flow problems; it posted a $62,000,000 loss for 1999 & was in default on the terms of its credit facility. Investors are angry that PZN lost its REIT status & the related dividend; they are filing class actions suits against Prison Realty Trust for false claims on Securities & Exchange Commission documents. Specifically, they are concerned about the non-disclosure of payments by PZN to CCA, and Prison Realty paid a dividend on their preferred stock.

Because the stock has lost 75% of its value, 2 of the executives are leaving, but not without a $1.3 million severance. There's also been millions in attorney fees, class action lawsuits from shareholders about the merger & management fees for restructuring. They instituted a 10 for 1 split, which does not change the underlying financials of the company, but prevented them from being removed from the New York Stock Exchange.

PZN currently has an agreement with Fortress Investment Group LLC, the Blackstone Group & Bank of America. Fortress Investment Group is a global alternative investment & asset management firm founded in 1998 with approx $11 billion in equity capital. Fortress recently completed an acquisition from the German Federal Government's social security & pension agency Bfa.

In 2004 Fortress merged with Stelmar Shipping Ltd. Stelmar is an international provider of petroleum products & crude oil transportation services & is located in Greece. Stelmar operates one of the world's largest Handymax & Panamax tanker fleets with an average age of approx 6 years. Stelmar's 40 vessel fleet consists of 24 Handymax, 13 Panamax & 3 Aframax tankers.

The Blackstone group is a private investment banking firm & describes itself as a leading global investment & advisory firm. The Blackstone Group was founded in 1985 by a group of 4, including Peter G. Peterson & Stephen A. Schwarzman.

The Blackstone Group has ties to American International Group Inc. [AIG] & Kissinger Assoc., Inc./Henry Kissinger. Blackstone has developed strategic alliances with some of the largest & most sophisticated international financial institutions. Blackstone's Alternative Asset Management unit handles $1 billion in hedge funds for pension giant CalPERS. In December 2001, the Blackstone Group was appointed as Enron's principal financial advisor for financial restructuring & is also handling the restructuring of Global Crossing.

In October 2004, Kissinger Associates & APCO Worldwide announced that they had formed "a strategic alliance". APCO worldwide [in DC] was started by Margery Kraus in 1984; she is active on the board of Group Menatep, the largest Russian holding company; Teuza Fund, a Fairchild technology venture (Israel). Group MENATEP is an international diversified holding company & long-term Russian strategic & portfolio investor in international financial & capital markets.

Other groups associated with Kissinger Associates [NY] are Kissinger McLarty Associates, Military-industrial complex & oil industry. Henry Kissinger's real last name is Stern, started & trained the terrorist group the Stern Gang in Israel, now called the Mossad; he trains global terrorist groups for the FBI, CIA, & the military, which are the groups running OUR government at every facet of its existence.

Pacific Life, a long term investor, beneficially owns approx 4.5 million shares of Prison Realty Trust [PZN]. The Prison Realty Trust, a REIT, is the world's largest private sector owner & developer. A REIT is a company that buys, develops, manages & sells real estate assets; allows participants to invest in a professionally-managed portfolio of real estate properties; & qualify as 'pass through entities' [companies able to distribute the majority of income cash flows to investors without taxation at the corporate level, providing that certain conditions are met]. As pass through entities, whose main function is to pass profits on to investors, a REIT's business activities are generally restricted to generation of property rental income.

A another major advantage of REIT investment is its liquidity [ease of liquidation of assets into cash] as compared to traditional private real estate ownership.

The origins of the 'real estate investment trust' or REIT date back to the 1880s. At that time, investors could avoid double taxation, as trusts were not taxed at the corporate level if income was distributed to beneficiaries. This tax advantage was reversed in the 1930s, & all passive investments were taxed first at the corporate level & later taxed as a part of individual incomes. Unlike stock & bond investment companies, REITs were unable to secure legislation to overturn the 1930 decision until 30 years later. Following WWII demand for real estate funds skyrocketed & President Eisenhower signed the 1960 real estate investment trust tax provision which reestablished the special tax considerations qualifying REIT's as pass through entities [eliminating double taxation]. This law has remained relatively intact with minor improvements since its inception. REIT investment increased throughout the 1980s with the elimination of certain real estate tax shelters. Investments in real estate provided investors with income & appreciation. The Tax Reform Act of 1986 allowed REIT's to manage their properties directly & in 1993 REIT investment barriers to pension funds were eliminated. This trend of reforms continued to increase the interest in & value of REIT investment.

Today, there are over 300 publicly traded REIT's operating in the US their assets total over $300 billion, & approx 2/3 of these trade on the national stock exchanges. REIT's fall into 3 broad categories:

Equity REITs: (96.1%); Mortgage REITs: (1.6%); Hybrid REITs: (2.3%).

Current REIT industry's investment choices, broken down by property are: Industrial/Office 33.1%; Retail 20%; Residential 21.0%; Specialty 2.3%; Health Care 3.8% Self Storage 3.6%; Diversified 8.5%; Mortgage Backed 1.5%; Lodging/Resort 6.1%

Cornell Corrections Inc. [NYSE:CRN] began in 1990 and Dillon Read Venture Capitol became their first investor on 1991. They are also called Trinity Venture Capital. They built correctional facilities, and have grown 33-fold in revenues and offenders under contract. They are the only company really in the business of aggressively growing in each of these 3 sectors. Their institutional revenues are around 42%, juvenile revenues approximate 40% & pre-release revenues are around 18%.

Privatization is the transfer of assets or service delivery from the government sector. Prisons are nothing but warehouses for the storage of goods & chattel under commercial law. The Warden is a Bailee or Warehouseman [before the term admiral was used was called Custos Maris "Warden of the Sea"] who receives personal property from another as Bailment. The Bailor is one who provides bail as a surety for a criminal defendant's release. Bailment is the delivery of personal property by one person [the Bailor] to another [the Bailee] who holds the property for a certain purpose under an expressed or implied-in-fact contract. Goods are tangible or movable property other than money; especially articles of trade or items of merchandize. UCC 1-103 is quoted in the Administrative Manual of the Internal Revenue Service, put out by CCH [Commerce Clearing House] & says that the law of the Merchant governs all sections in the Internal Revenue Code. Based on the above information it looks like GSA & GAO are heavily involved in the accounting aspect of the Prison System, which explains why they are supplying all the Bond forms respecting the Bid, Performance, & Payment.

When your dishonor is sold within the United States it has a 6 digit accounting number & is called a Cardinal number, when it is sold at the International Level it goes Ordinance or Military & uses a 9 digit accounting number. This is where AutoTRIS & CUSIP [Committee on Uniform Identification Process] come in. AutoTRIS is the 'Automated Forensic Traces Investigation System' & was designed in the REIT, Mortgage Backed Securities, is ownership position in a group, or pool, of mortgage loans. It is Bonds in which interest & principal received from this pool of mortgage loans are passed through to the Bondholders]. TBA [the Bond Market Association] & CUSIPs incorporate within the number itself, a security's mortgage type [Ginnie Mae, Fannie Mae, Sally Mae, & Freddie Mac], coupon, maturity, & settlement month. For financial instruments actively traded on an International basis, which are either underwritten debt issues or domiciled equities outside the United States & Canada, the financial instruments will be identified by a CINS [CUSIP International Numbering System] number. The CINS number was developed in 1988 by Standard Poor's & Telekurs [USA] in response to the North American Securities industries' need for 9 character identifier for International Financial Instruments. CINS numbers appear in the International Securities Identification Directory [ISID Plus Services].

IT'S A MASSIVE SYSTEM

To show how massive this system is ISID plus contains over 500,000 global financial instruments & cross references all major national numbering systems... ISID Plus has been designed to minimize the impact on back-office systems & operations, while facilitating cross-border communications among global custodians, depositories, banks, securities organizations, & exchanges. CINS numbers employ the same issuer [6 characters] Issue [2 characters check digit] concept espoused by the CUSIP Numbering System. The first position of a CINS code is always represented by an alpha character, signifying the Issuer's country code [domicile] or Geographic region. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners [NAIC] in October 1988 mandated the use by issuers of a uniform private placement number [PPN] to identify investments in their annual statements filed with the State Regulatory Authorities.

Also contributing to the new financial architecture is the rise of multi-national & transnational corporations, mergers & acquisitions, country privatization of its assets such as railroads, agriculture, banks, airlines, telephone companies, etc. Furthermore, the rise of public-private partnerships, which is a merger between government & business, also known as fascism, has contributed to a changed financial landscape. In addition, there is the move towards a global stock exchange, the establishment of a World's Customs Organization & "open skies" between countries.

So what's going on?

A condensed version of what is going on is that the CCA as a corporation creates or issues stock certificates based on prison population, goods or 'chattel' as they are called in commercial law. The underwriter is the one who buys the stock from the Issuer CCA with intent to resell it to the public or an entity or person, which is usually an investment banker. The investment banker purchases all or part of the shares of the stock for resale to the public in the form of newly issued investment securities based on the shares of the stock. Brokerage Houses & Insurance Companies Bid on the Investment Securities with a Bid Bond issued by the GSA. The Bid Bond is then indemnified by a surety company through Performance & Payment Bonds. The Bid, Performance, & Payment Bonds are then underwritten by the Banks as Investment Securities for resale to the public. The Institutional Holders who own most of the Shares are:

1. FMR [Fidelity Management Research Corp.] 3, 084,024 shares at a value of $109,791,254 leaders said Wednesday.

"We are no longer citizens of the United States of America and all those who live in the five-state area that encompasses our country are free to join us, long-time Indian rights activist Russell Means told a handful of reporters and a delegation from the Bolivian embassy, gathered in a church in a run down neighborhood of Washington for a news conference.

A delegation of Lakota leaders delivered a message to the State Department on Monday, announcing they were unilaterally withdrawing from treaties they signed with the federal government of the United States, some of them more than 150 years old.

They also visited the Bolivian, Chilean, South African and Venezuelan embassies, and will continue on their diplomatic mission and take it overseas in the coming weeks and months, they told the news conference.

Lakota country includes parts of the states of Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana and Wyoming.

The new country would issue its own passports and driving licenses, and living there would be tax-free -- provided residents renounce their US citizenship, Means said.

The treaties signed with the United States are merely "worthless words on worthless paper," the Lakota freedom activists say on their website. The treaties have been "repeatedly violated in order to steal our culture, our land and our ability to maintain our way of life," the reborn freedom movement says.

Withdrawing from the treaties was entirely legal, Means said.

This is according to the laws of the United States, specifically article six of the constitution," which states that treaties are the supreme law of the land, he said.

create low cost clean energy (zero emissions), create independence from foreign oil use, non-degenerative and non-destructive energy forces from the technology use, while creating worldwide demand for this Ultimate Solution.

Ron and his team made some substantial technical discoveries and potential problems with the current design and proceeded to re-build the AATE with new specifications. Noise level was substantially reduced and overheating was no longer any concern. Haskel met the improvements in the design with great joy. What remains to be done is more testing and validation from a government source (Wyle Testing Laboratory) that the AATE performs as described and is sustainable.

In early 2008 there had been an invitation by a government department to apply for a number of grants that were available only for new energy projects. Sound more promising than the first encounter with the government. The applications were arduous and requested very specific and detailed specifications of the engine. It was not acceptable to provide the government with those specifications. Another individual with high status in the Mexican Government offered to set up a meeting with the President of Mexico.

At first it sounded very good to Ron. As the time approached, the meeting was postponed and Ron began to feel something was not right. This trip did not happen either. As it turned out, this individual was in a financial bind and planned no introduction to President of Mexico. The promised trip to Washington was actually a scheduled NAFTA meeting not a special meeting for Ron.

So what exactly is the AATE? It is a mechanical device built to spin at high revolutions without the need for any fuel, combustion or compressed air. This device is a sophisticated application of a simple scientific principle long known in the alternative energy field, Vortex Implosion Air Technology (VIAT). Viktor Schauberger first discovered the principle of the Vortex and developed technology for moving water more efficiently. The same principle can be applied to airflow. The RSR AATE runs on ambient air; the very air we breathe, using no air tanks and no other power source other than air. A tornado is created in the engine that implodes on itself which actually speeds up and sustains the airflow back into the tornado.

We see what is wrong with our energy policies every time we go to the pump, buy groceries, pay our bills and of course all the news that bombards us daily. Perhaps it is a good thing that huge caverns are being created beneath the earth surface. When the current trend of melting glaciers and icebergs continues the land will cave in and fill those holes and we will not have to worry about flooding the land we live on.

Enough is enough America. Take the time to contact your politicians and let them know that you know the time for positive change is now. Forget those hybrid cars, wind generators and solar cells. The costs of implementing these technologies will never be recovered in your lifetime but you and your children will be paying for them without any benefit to them.

HOMELESS NO MORE

By Janet C. Phelan
The American's Bulletin

It is a rainy day in Santa Monica. About dozen homeless people have gathered under the overhang at The Ocean Park Community Access Center on Olympic Boulevard, which is the hub for homeless services in Santa Monica. While the rain pours down, the homeless huddle, share cigarettes and joke wryly about available "shelter."

Santa Monica developed a reputation as a "homeless friendly" community back in the eighties, when the City of Santa Monica opened its doors to the poorest of the poor, setting up an extensive network of homeless services and even sanctioning a "tent city" on the lawn of City Hall. Drawn by this reputation as well as by the warm weather, the homeless began to stream in to Santa Monica. Along the way, the politics of this beautiful, wealthy city by the sea changed, but the reputation remained.

The current leadership of the city of Santa Monica is, in fact, engaged in legal warfare against this population. Under the tutelage of the misnamed "Homeless Liaison Office," the city has drafted and passed legislation criminalizing behavior that simply bespeaks poverty. A major proponent of these new laws is Councilman Bobby Shriver, brother to Maria Shriver, who is the wife of Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger. It was Shriver whom I first heard drop the phrase, "quality of life crimes."

For example, it is now illegal (and punishable by six months jail time) to engage in any of the following behaviors: Washing your hair in a public restroom; Sleeping on the beach or in parks during the day; Sleeping in a car; Shaving in a public restroom; "Aggressive" panhandling. The definition for "aggressive" involves all verbalizations requesting assistance. Signs are still legal.

In addition, the City has passed laws that placed a "chilling" effect on those wishing to assist the homeless, by feeding them. The 9th circuit court of appeals upheld laws in Santa Monica which prohibited public feedings, unless a permit were acquired. The terms of the permit, which were required for events accommodating more than 150 people, placed a minimum $500 clean-up fee, payable to the City, as well as a more modest permit fee simply to pass out food to hungry people.

Paul Grymkowski, a former owner of the chain Gold's gym and a deacon in a local church, had been passing out food two days a week in Palisades Park for a number of years. He was providing high quality, vegetable-intensive meals, which were enormously popular among the homeless. Upon passage of the anti-feeding law, he changed his format and began to display signs reading "The Grymkowski Family and Friends Picnic." He reasoned that he could not be arrested and jailed for holding picnics.

The police began to show up at Grymkowski's events, and shortly thereafter, he discontinued serving meals in the park. The Status Report from The City of Santa Monica reveals that the number of public feedings dropped from 26 down to only five, since the adoption of the permit laws in 2002. The status report also includes the rationale for the permit laws: "The feedings often attract large crowds. As most of the persons receiving food are, or appear to be homeless, they usually have significant amounts of personal property with them...wear and tear on park property is substantial. Perhaps most importantly, the scheduled public feedings tend to facilitate homeless people staying in the streets."

Well, I guess if they don't eat, they won't be living on the streets (or anywhere else) very long...

Several years ago, Grymkowski expressed concern that he would soon be jailed for his large heart. At this point, he has moved his picnics out of the park to the "legal" interior of the OPCC Access Center.

Homelessness is increasing in Santa Monica. The ravages of the economy and the termination of the Section 8 housing program in Los Angeles have all contributed to the swelling of the numbers of the poorest of the poor. The service visits at OPCC support this perception. The number of people served at OPCC's Access Center for FY 2004-2005 was 2,095. By FY 2006-7, the number had jumped to over 2,700.

Interestingly enough, the official Homeless Census, sponsored by Los Angeles Homeless Services Association, tells a different story. The census reports that the numbers of homeless in Santa Monica dropped 25% between 2005 and 2007, from 1991 to 1506. This was dutifully reported in the Santa Monica Daily Press, which quoted city officials as stating that the results of the homeless count demonstrate that the efforts of the city to help the homeless are working.

Johan Maceri, the Executive Director of OPCC, did not return calls from TAB inquiring as to the discrepancy between his agency's figures and what was reported in the press.

The City of Santa Monica has launched an aggressive program to address the "homeless problem." The shelter programs in Los Angeles County, of which Santa Monica is a part, currently offer a maximum of about 12,000 beds, for a population of over 73,000. This figure includes the "winter shelter" beds, when the National Guard Armories open their doors between the months of November and March and transitional housing beds. For Santa Monica, "homeless capital of the United States," the emergency and transitional shelter beds total 261. This figure increases by 464 if one adds in the transitional housing beds, which can be occupied for up to two years. Julie Rusk, director of Santa Monica City Hall's homeless effort, seized upon the so-called "drop" in homelessness in Santa Monica and proclaimed, "We are going in the right direction."

Rusk did not return calls from TAB requesting an explanation for the apparent drop in the homeless census at the same time that the service numbers for OPCC were on the rise. Stacy Rowe, Human Services Administrator, did agree to speak with this reporter. She suggested that the reasons that the figures for OPCC were on the rise was due to the "excellent" job of outreach that agency was doing.

However, the word on the streets is that the numbers of homeless in Santa Monica is exploding. "We've got people flooding in here like nobody's business," said "Dave," who was parking his bike in front of OPCC.

Under the banner of addressing the "homeless problem," Santa Monica has recently set up a "Homeless Court." The questionable Constitutionality of bifurcating the legal system and setting up a court for only those in particular economic stratum does not seem to bother City Hall. Homeless court convenes once a month, to hear cases involving "quality of life" and other petty cases against homeless individuals. The city's website hails this as "an innovative pilot project." Spearheaded by Santa Monica Homeless "Czar" Ed Edelman, the court will offer drug and psychiatric assistance, rather than jail time, to those arrested for "petty offenses."

In "Ending Homelessness in Santa Monica," authored by the Urban Institute, a think tank in Washington, D.C., a "big stick" approach is advocated, using the threat of increased incarceration as the prod. "As things stand now," states the report, "the only 'or else' that the court will have, as it urges homeless people to 'cooperate, or else,' is a relatively short stay in jail. We believe it will need a stronger 'or else' to make a real dent; changing the jail could supply that strength."

This brings us to the spectre of Army Regulation 210-35. Drafted into law in 1997 and revised in 2005, 210-35 calls for the setting up of "civilian inmate labor camps" on military bases. There has been much buzz, mostly on the internet, concerning closed military bases being reconfigured as "concentration camps." The fact is that 210-35 reveals who the denizens of these forced labor camps will be. Section 3-5 (a) (6) states that the camps should be set up in compliance with the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act. This was enacted under the administration of Ronald Reagan, in 1987.

The Army Regulation goes on to mitigate any sort of press coverage of activities or inmates, and chillingly states that if inmate deaths occur, the host agency will not be held responsible.

In an interview last fall with Danielle Noble of the Homeless Liaison office in Santa Monica, Noble explicitly denied any knowledge of 210-35. "We have enough trouble getting the homeless into regular housing," she said. "Why would we put them in concentration camps?"

I guess I have some questions, too. Why would someone be arrested for shaving in a public restroom? Why would the City of Santa Monica put forward $476,237 (estimated costs for one year pilot Homeless Court), which admittedly served only eighty-two people in a one year span of time, when it would cost less to simply house these individuals?

And why is the legal system being altered to criminalize poverty? Why does the Urban Institute advocate "changing the jail" to "make a dent" on homelessness? And why in the world does the Army now have in place plans to place homeless people in forced labor camps?

The poor are always with us, or so stated the Bible. Maybe the U.S. Government has made different plans.

Major Health Discovery Made And It Is Not Good

By Kafka
Via Rense.com

Last year, I purchased five Chinese made 1,000 watt electrical generators. They were all defective because of faulty electrical magnetos that would not produce voltage to fire the spark plug. The generators would not start or run.

Off the shelf replacement ignition systems were not available, so a decision was made to design and build electronic ignition systems to make the generators functional. My friend, Carl, designed and built a state of the art prototype ignition system using a Hall Effect Sensor to detect the rotation of the motor shaft to fire the spark plug. The new prototype worked perfectly on the test bench inside the house but the Hall Effect (Magnetic) Sensor failed after seconds of operation installed on the generator outside the house and would not respond to a magnet manually passed in front of the Hall Sensor. The magnetic sensor capability failed completely. But, after close inspection, the Hall Sensor was observed to be in a permanent conductive state while outside the house installed on the generator. The ignition system was removed from the generator and placed on the test bench inside the house. It stopped conducting inside the house. Fifteen Hall Effect Sensors failed in the same manner. Two separate tests were performed by moving the solid state ignition system with Hall Effect Sensor outside the house where it failed and became conductive and when moved inside the house, it became non-conductive.

That is to say, outside the house, it was permanently on and inside the house, it was permanently off. Inside the Hall Effect Solid State Sensor there is a component called a Hall Plate. If the Hall Plate is driven into saturation by microwave radiation from the sky, it would go conductive, and if you shielded the Hall Effect Sensor from that foreign radiation, it would go non-conductive. Moving the Hall Effect Sensor inside the house would shield the radiation somewhat and again the sensor would go non-conductive! When we realized the implications of our findings, we felt terror!

This is our conclusion.

We know the chemtrails are a primary RFMP (Radio Frequency Mission Planner) heavy metal barium mixture plus DARPA (Defense Advanced Research Programs Agency) chemistry (biological) used for various military applications, including weather control. We know the atmosphere has been converted into an electrical plasma environment with ongoing ionic manipulation. We believe the atmosphere is an ever decaying caldron of death for citizens. Sooner or later it will effect the health of all.

With the addition of significant microwave radiation in a plasma atmosphere environment, you have a recipe for death of all life on earth.

1. The human electrical system is greatly compromised and disrupted.
2. Inability to sleep.
3. The heart beat rhythm can be interrupted and adversely effected, pulsing fast at times.
4. Blood pressure increases.
5. Accelerated aging of the skin.
6. Cancers.
7. Visual eye problems and a multitude of illnesses can be attributed to the plasma atmosphere with microwave radiation coming down on the citizens.
8. Mental processes adversely affected and reduced.
9. Every aspect of life on earth is at risk for sickness and death.

Remember, it does not matter who kills you, whether it is lawful or not. It does not matter if it is the good guy or the bad guy that kills you. The reason for your death does not matter. It only matters that you are dead.

We continue to investigate.

Your Personal Power To Change
By Joyus-Apollo Diamond

Be honest with yourself - open up your eyes real wide - now look at your world. Ask yourself one simple question - do I like what I see? If you do, great - if you don't, change it.

This is what I do to help others - and the reason I wrote my book. To help you:

Change your Thinking, To Change your life!

When you apply the simple, practical, universal techniques I present in my book you will see Dramatic, Positive, Permanent changes in your life. It does work and is worth it! You are worth it!

could be held.
Eighth: Those officials now appointed could not take office until they each individually first swore an Oath of Office stating they would uphold the Constitution of the United States of America. Again it is very important to notice the name used in the Bill of Rights and now used for this "contract" with the officers and agencies serving under Oath to obey and uphold the Constitution of the United States of America, not, "for", but "of".

Note: It's important to note here that we are indeed talking about two different documents. The First, the Constitution for the United States of America, is a Trust and the Second, the Constitution of the United States of America, is a contract between the officers of government and the beneficiaries of the Trust.

After the Constitution was in place, and elections were held ratifying George Washington as President things went fairly well until the Civil War.

In 1863, Lincoln instituted martial law and ordered that the States either conscribe troops and provide money in support of the North or be recognized as and enemy of the nation; this martial law Act of Congress is still in effect today—what it means is that the President has dictatorial authority to do anything that can be done by the government in accord with the Constitution of the United States of America. This martial law authority is still in effect to this day and this Act was the foundation of today's Presidential Executive Orders.

By 1868 the war was over and the government had a gigantic problem. Until that time Congressmen were equally, collectively and severally liable for any official acts they performed outside of their constitutional limitations. It was much like a General Partnership. In the wake of the war martial law was necessarily enforced in the South and carpetbaggers were sent down to "help adjust property ownership problems" after the war. Many great atrocities

Corp. U.S. was not well received by the people so Congress revised the Act in 1874 and finalized it in 1878. Corp. U.S. began issuing bonds to cover the expenses of running government. By 1912 there was more bond debt due than there was money in the Treasury to pay and the debt was called.

Seven very powerful families had been buying up the bonds and in 1912 they demanded their timely redemption.

When Corp. U.S. couldn't come up with the money due, its owner (the actual government) was obligated to pay. The Treasury of the United States of America [v. the Treasury of the United States (corp.)] did not have sufficient funds to cover the bonds either but the seven families accepted all of the assets of the nation's Treasury along with all of the assets of Corp. U.S.' Treasury as a settlement of the debt saving the nation from bankruptcy. By 1913 there was still no money for operating the government/corporation, and if Corp. U.S. didn't do something the people would revolt against them, so Corp. U.S. went to those seven very powerful families and asked if they could borrow money from them.

The Federal Reserve Bank

The heads of those families refused to loan Corp. U.S. any money because Corp. U.S. had already proven that it would not pay its debts back in full. They did however make arrangements and provisions to issue notes (Federal Reserve Notes) like letters of credit while they secured the notes for redemption with real money. On Jekyll Island in 1913 the Federal Reserve Bank privately agreed to so fund Corp. U.S. in their endeavors. Such an action would have been a gigantic violation of law if the government tried such a thing, but there is no law against private corporations making such arrangements. The real problem is in the name. How does one tell the difference between a corporation going by the name, "THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT", and the government of the United States of America? What's worse, how do you tell the difference between the "United States" [a Trust and the body of government that represents the Trust, as Trustees], and the "United States" a trademark name for, "The District of Columbia" [a private corporation]? The answer is simple; you can't unless you can tell by the context of what's being done.

The problem gets even larger when you take into consideration the fact that the officers of government are also the officers of the corporation. They were simultaneously appointed or elected into their offices, both in the corporation and in the government at the same time. In virtually every way the name of their offices and their responsibilities as corporate officials and as government officers were coincidental between 1871 and 1913. There was no conflict in interest because the Corp. U.S.' purpose was to fulfill the business needs of the actual government.

I'm not going here into all of the details and ramifications of the arrangements between Corp. U.S. and the Federal Reserve Bank. The simple fact is: Where the government couldn't lawfully be involved with the Federal Reserve Bank, the corporation can be.

Vacating the seats of Government

Under all of the media coverage of the Federal Reserve Bank Act, Corp. U.S. passes and adopts (as if ratified) their own 16th Amendment. Remember, this amendment has nothing to do with our nation, with our people or with our national Constitution, which already had its own 16th Article of Amendment as of 1870. The Supreme Court ruled that Corp. U.S.' 16th Amendment did nothing that was not already done other than to make plain and clear the right of the United States (Corp. U.S.) to tax corporations. We agree, considering that they were obviously created only under the authority of Corp. U.S. Two months later Corp. U.S.' Congress entered their 17th Amendment as ratified. Again in the corporate ratification pattern of the Corp. U.S. 16th amendment was followed with actual State ratification. This amendment is not even constitutional; the Constitution forbids Congress from even discussing the matter of where Senators are elected. For our national Congress to pass such an Amendment they would first have to amend the Constitution to allow their discussion of the matter. Either way the result is that in Corp. U.S. their corporate officials known as Senators would thereafter be elected by a popular vote of their contracted voting public, while in the actual government (hereafter "original jurisdiction government") Senators would continue to be appointed by the State's Legislature or by the State's Governor. In other words, the Corp. U.S. seats and the original jurisdiction government seats would not thereafter be seated by the same individual.

In 1914, the Freshman class and all Senators that successfully ran for reelection in 1913 by popular vote are seated in Corp. U.S. capacity only and the original jurisdiction Senate seat was vacated, because the States failed to appoint new Senators (after all no law compels them to).

In 1916, President Wilson is reelected by the Electoral College but their election is required to be confirmed by the constitutionally set Senate; where the new Corp. U.S. only Senators were allowed to participate in the Electoral College vote confirmation the only authority that could possibly have been used for electoral confirmation was corporate only. Therefore, President Wilson was not confirmed into office for his second term as President of the United States of America and was only seated Inevitably, this argument will close with a blustery, "Well, there's always going to be a few who have no respect (or skill)". The answer to this is, good laws are not enacted to cover exceptions, and this is the purpose of peace officers. Typically, the visible presence of a peace officer is sufficient to inspire the most obnoxious, exhibitionistic, compulsive members of society to appropriate standards of conduct. However, if such a person were to insist on brandishing a two-ton weapon on the highway, threatening the lives and safety of fellow citizens, a peace officer would certainly have probable cause to apprehend and remove that person from our midst. That kind of conduct is "criminal" in nature.

"Traffic violations," which usually harm no one, are not committed with intent to injure. Sometimes they are committed without knowledge of having done so at all.

Historically, Oregonians traveled without a license. In the era when highway travel was dependent on huge and potentially dangerous horses and fragile, high centered carriages and wagons that horses pulled, even young children were encouraged to learn to ride so they could help with the business of life. If the concept of "license", as a device to keep us safe, was ever needed, it was before the advent of the automobile that always does what you intend it to do. Deaths and disabilities per traveled mile in the horse and buggy era were far more frequent than today. In 1905, when hardly anyone owned an automobile for personal use, and many people had yet to even see one, Oregon's Legislature enacted the State's first "motor vehicle laws". The intent was to make sure that the commercial operators who used these fast, efficient devices to transport goods and passengers would not do so to the detriment of the public's "preferred use" of the roads (judicial language for what the people did on the roads in contrast to "privileged operation"). Fee schedules were established for motor vehicles based on load capacity, tire width, whether the tire was solid or pneumatic, and whether a vehicle would be garaged in the same place at night (obviously, the ones that were, didn't go as far in a day and thus impacted fewer miles of the public's highway system).

Ego centric as many of us are, there is a common misconception that roads are designed for the benefit of the traveling public. Not so! Each surface bearing "traffic" (a commercial term) must be engineered to withstand the impact of the heaviest vehicles that will pass over them. Thus, it is that while the people build roads that take them where they need to go and home again, it is the commercial use, or "traffic," that uses them up and necessitates the vast majority of routine highway maintenance. This is precisely why the Motor Vehicle Acts in the early 20th Century started off by saying, we, the legislature, intend to regulate every vehicle that transports persons or property for hire over the public highways and impose fees on them to fix the damage they cause (see this typical language in General Laws of Oregon 1925, Chapter 380). According to the recent past counsel to the legislature, Greg Chaimov, the 1925 enactment has the most recent legislative definition of "motor vehicle," any vehicle transporting for compensation or hire.

There is abundant cross reference to the legislative intent to regulate the business of transporting. The General Laws of Oregon 1921, Chapter 412 was preceded by thoughtful "whereas" language, which clearly reveals that the concern was over commercial vehicles. The Legislature wrote that whereas the heavier a truck is laden, the more damage it will do to the road and the more gas it will use, and similarly, the further a truck is driven, the more damage it does and the more gas it uses. Therefore, to "make more perfect the privilege tax" on the operation of motor vehicles, we will impose a penny a gallon tax on motor vehicle fuel.

Until 1911, the driver license was called an "Operator's license." Those who remember their Latin will understand that the term "operator" has to do with compensated labor. When the Legislative Assembly met in 1911, they created a second driver license for the operators whose business was transporting "passengers" and their baggage. The 1911 license was called a "Chauffeur's license."

In 1916 the Oregon Supreme Court ruled, incidentally to a decision in the matter of Kurtz v Southern Pacific Co. (80 Or 218-219, "80" being the Volume #, "Or" being the abbreviation for Oregon Supreme Court Reports, and the final numbers being the page numbers), that it is the right of citizens to "control" a vehicle on the roads and streets, whether for pleasure, profit or gain, but when one undertakes the occupation of transporting for hire, one becomes subject to licensing.

Bear in mind that the emerging technology that has become the automobile of today had not even climbed onto the assembly line until Henry Ford figured out that the only way to make cars affordable for all was to introduce task specialization in 1919. If you were like most Oregonians who were able to "go for a drive" in the country on a weekend lark during the 1920s, you were going to hire a car and driver. To meet the demand for the popular experience of going for a drive, a number of firms began to rent cars on a "drive it yourself" basis.

In 1929 the Public Utilities Commission, which was in charge of the people's Transportation Infrastructure at the time, and was therefore financially interested in motor vehicle fee collection, asked Mr. Attorney General Isaac Van Winkle for his official opinion on whether rental cars were regulated "motor vehicles." In the hardbound volumes of "Attorney General's Opinions" and dated August 28, 1929, Mr. Van Winkle agreed with a recent Washington Supreme Court decision in which the Court ruled that automobiles rented from Hertz for personal use were not subject to the motor vehicle laws because they were not rented with drivers for hire. Mr. Van Winkle went on to say that the laws of Washington are just like the General Laws of Oregon 1925, Chap. 380, as amended by General Laws of Oregon 1929, Chap. 394.

Oregon went through and survived the Great Depression. More cars were purchased for personal use and the state highway system expanded rapidly. However, for as yet unexplained reasons, the fees paid by the trucking industry and other commercial interests diminished significantly as a percentage of their revenues and per miles of highway "transportation" (Black's Law Dictionary, 3rd Edition, defines "transportation" as the movement of goods and passengers by a [common] carrier over the highways and waterways). The practice of insuring highway users among the major insurance companies came to be restricted exclusively to vehicles "registered" to do business and operated by "licensed drivers" (see current ORS 803.305(14) {c}). What did not change in the years between 1911 and 1985 were the classes of driver license.

The Minor Court Rules Committee was an aptly named agency of the Oregon Supreme Court. It was charged with creating rules and procedure for the "inferior tribunals" which were set up to consider violations of licensing agreements that commercial Operators have with the State, including "Traffic Courts" Created in 1957, the Minor Court Rules Committee had long been concerned with how to properly relate with the people who had no statutory obligations, but for their own reasons had chosen to apply for all of the titles, registrations and licenses that the DMV was willing to sell. The Minor Court Rules Committee was composed of state and local judges, public attorneys, the Superintendent of State Police and bureaucrats, including the Director of the DMV.

Driven by the popularity of the licensing laws, and in no small part, the concerns of the Minor Court Rules Committee, the Legislature's Transportation Committees decided to undertake a major revision of the Motor Vehicle Laws during the first three sessions of the 1980's. As the revision was being completed in 1985, the Minor Court Rules Committee sent the Director of the DMV to visit with the Joint Transportation Committee that was revising the Vehicle Code. The DMV Director brought with him the key to "legally" (what is written in law, distinct from "lawfully") bring the people into Traffic Court. The plan is known as the "Optional Titling Rule." Being nothing more than "citizen legislators" are, most of the Joint Committee members did not remember the original purpose of the motor vehicle laws. They were somewhat puzzled when the DMV Director's petition was read and admission made that there "is no authority in current law" to issue documents of vehicle title and registration and to thereby turn personal use vehicles into regulated "motor vehicles" (the Director's petition is labeled Exhibit B in support of Senate Bill 124 of 1985). The Chairwoman however, had served a number of successive sessions as the Chair of the House Transportation Committee and then Chair of the Senate Transportation Committee, so she was able to smooth the way to passage of the Optional Titling Rule, now encoded in the Oregon Revised Statutes at 803.035 through 803.040 (and 803.310 for the optional registration component). The DMV now possessed authority to create an agency rule allowing it to title and register vehicles, which had never been subject to the motor vehicle laws, but only if an owner, should request. The law specifically says that the effect of titling with the DMV is to make a vehicle "subject to all of the provisions of the vehicle code."

Another significant piece of legislation proposed by the DMV in 1985 was to change the basis of classes of Driver license from the occupation of the driver, to the type of vehicle the driver operated. Remember that the two occupational licenses to this point were the operator's and the chauffeur's license. So it came about with a minimum of fuss, that from then on, there would be three classes of driver license, which are today the Class A commercial, Class B commercial, and in somewhat contorted language, the Class C commercial license, with endorsements, and then redundantly described without endorsements. It may be of some interest to those who have purchased the Class C license without endorsements, to know that the difference between needing an endorsement or not, is the difference between a 26,000 gross vehicle weight (GVW) truck and one which is 26,001 or larger, or between 15 and 16 passengers. An operator of a hazardous waste truck also must have an endorsement on the Class C license. For a little perspective, please consider that personal use vehicles will typically weight somewhere between 3,000 pounds on the small fuel efficient end of the scale, and perhaps approaching 6,000 pounds if it is a king cab 4X4 pickup with all the options.

What is more important to this discussion is what the legislature did not enact. The revision of the vehicle code did not include amending the class of "drivers" who were, and remain, those licensed to engage in the "occupation" of transporting persons or property for compensation. Indeed Laws of Oregon 1983, Chapter 338, Section 3 specifically says that the intent of the legislature "is not to change the law with this revision, but to make it easier to use, understand and amend...", and every state agency and every court shall regard this revision as a continuation of the laws in effect at the time of this revision".

The language defining "highway" at former ORS 482.010(5), which read: "highway means every public way of whatever nature, open to public vehicular travel as a matter of right" was amended to: all the places "... open, used or intended for use of the general public for vehicles or vehicular traffic as a matter of right."

The very knowledgeable Chairwoman of the Joint Committee on the Revision of the Vehicle Code soon became the next DMV director. Even though the legislative record now contained an admission that the DMV had never possessed the authority to title and register the people's vehicles, personal use vehicles continued to be turned into regulated "motor vehicles"..."without authority in law" (illegally). Just before Thanksgiving of 2004 and several DMV Directors later, the process of adopting DMV's new authority was begun when a member of the general public asked to inspect a copy of the Optional Titling Rule, and it was discovered that it had yet to be written. The proposed Oregon Administrative Rule, "OAR" was assigned the number 735-022-0120.

The notification of rule making required by law was drafted, stating that only "members of the general public who choose to apply for title" (which are actually "certificates of title") from the DMV will be financially impacted. Possibly, due to the crush of the upcoming holiday season, DMV did not send out the legally required notices to the public or to the "financially impacted parties," which just happened to be the public. Not one member of the public attended the December 21 public hearing on the proposed rule that would make it possible for them to "legally" turn their personal use vehicles into regulated "motor vehicles" when, and if, they might choose to do so.

Before a DMV administrative rule is made final, unpaid citizen volunteers who are appointed by the Governor as "Transportation Commissioners" must cast a supportive vote. Although the DMV did not provide the Commissioners with the legislative history to facilitate an informed vote, the Commissioners voted unanimously to adopt the Optional Titling Rule on February 16, 2005. The momentum had finally built up in favor of allowing the public to legally convert their vehicles into regulated "motor operator," in all likelihood that Oregonian will have a legislator who voted to retain the language defining highways as all the places used by the public as a matter of right. Dave Henderson of Legislative Administration can provide you the text of HB 3445 and the role call vote of the legislature, so you can see if your rep or senator was one of the few who voted no, or who were absent when the vote was taken. Imagine calling your legislator to testify in traffic court that absent your fully informed choice to title and register your vehicle, you could not have lawfully relinquished your right in favor of the privilege and become "subject to all of the provisions of the vehicle code." "Those who fail to learn from history are doomed to repeat it." "The cost of freedom is constant vigilance." "An educated citizenry is essential to the functioning of a free society." If you, the reader, provide a name of one of those quoted here, and send a dollar with a SASE, the Committee for Appropriate Enforcement of Motor Vehicle Laws will send you a copy of BB 3445 signed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, the President of the Senate and the Governor.

For many people, the argument based on Legislative Construction, or the way the laws are written, is the most fun to make. This argument provides an opportunity for puzzle solvers to participate in a lively round of competitiveness. Of course, you have to come up with an opponent who is willing to take you on.

The Rules of Legislative Construction are few and easy to understand. The prime source for the rules is the Oregon Constitution in Article IV (four) regarding the Legislative Assembly, beginning at Section 20. Sections 20, 21, 22, and 27 are the relevant sections. A second place to learn the simple Rules of Legislative Construction is in Chapter 174 of the Oregon Revised Statutes. While the first three sections of that chapter will get most puzzle solvers by just fine, 174.530 is designed to be the rule of last resort: Section .530 says that when "ambiguity" in the statutes cannot otherwise be resolved, "resort to the Acts" shall be taken.

Some people who may wish to try this argument will need a little help with the rule of last resort. Statutes are "encoded" laws, which are edited and placed in context with existing statutes by the legislature's staff of attorneys, in the Office known as "Legislative Counsel" (see ORS 173.160 to team the limits of Legislative Counsel's powers and duties). The profession of every brother and sister attorney in Oregon is dependent on "controversy," which their arguments before a judge will resolve. Thus it is, that "ambiguity" in the statutes may from time to time arise (beware of he who wields the power to place commas and other punctuation marks).

When the Legislature contemplates an idea for a law (which is also written up by Legislative Counsel as "bills") and they agree, by vote, that the bill would provide for the peace, safety and happiness of their neighbors, their collective decision/vote, is called an "Act." Their work product, which may have been interlined during Committee hearings and work sessions, is called an "enactment." The collections of enactments from a particular legislative session are catalogued in volumes known as "Laws of Oregon," formerly, "General Laws of Oregon".

Just so, the Legislative Constructionist knows: The Oregon Supreme Court cannot always figure out what an Act of the legislature means without considering "legislative intent." Legislative intent is determined by an examination of the minutes of Committee hearing and exhibits submitted in the course of Committee deliberations.

The simple rules of Legislative Construction in Article IV are: Laws are to embrace but one subject; Laws shall be plainly worded: When section amended or repealed, the new language must be set down side by side with the original (in bill form); Every statute shall be a public law, unless otherwise declared in the statute itself.

The principles of Legislative Construction in ORS Chapter 174 are: The job of a judge is to determine what is, and is not the law, not to put one thing into the language of the law nor to take one thing out; Definitions shall be used so that a word has the same effect in subsequent sections; When it appears that the general statement of the law is in conflict with the particular, the particular statement shall govern; When a statute is equally susceptible of two interpretations, one in favor of natural rights and the other against, the former shall prevail.

Because of certain omissions on the part of Legislative Counsel to define words, puzzle solvers should be aware that the Legislature actually does have an official guide to common English usage, Webster's New International Dictionary, Third Edition. That dictionary is considered a "legal authority." It is from this dictionary that the term "highway" is drawn.

With these rules and principles in mind, the Legislative Constructionist will properly begin an analysis at the first chapter of the Vehicle Code, Chapter 801. Chapters are logically arranged so that the reader can find the "general purpose and statement of applicability" right away. On the first page of 500 and some odd, the "persons," or "drivers," to whom the Code is "applicable" are found particularly described at ORS 801.020(4), they are folks who operate government owned vehicles. While there are additional "owners and operators" who are said to be "subject to the motor vehicle laws of this state," if they want to be "granted the privilege" (801.050), nowhere in the "GENERAL PROVISIONS" section is there reference to "the general public" or their "personal use vehicles."

"DEFINITIONS" begin at ORS 801.1 {}a. In this section, important definitions that will apply throughout the Vehicle Code are alphabetically listed. Typically, a definition section will make clear who the "persons" are who will be regulated, so that those who are members of the "subject class" may readily determine that a given body of law applies to them. It is interesting to note that the two most significant words that are used to identify the subject class, "driver," and "operator" have never been printed in the format that the attorneys of Legislative Counsel are responsible for preparing (the Oregon Revised Statutes were first printed in 1953). Not to worry, there is more than adequate context from which to discern their identity. For purposes of the argument that the Legislature has never intended to grant a privilege to the public, the single most important word in the Vehicle Code is "highway." That term is found in the definition section at 801.305. The definition was reaffirmed, during the 2007 Legislative Session when two areas that had been "conditional use", were added to all the places traditionally "open, used or intended for use by the general public for vehicles... as a matter of right". Notwithstanding the fact that 801.305 introduce "the general public" to the Vehicle Code, nothing more is said about them anywhere in the 500 plus pages.

Already, the Legislative Constructionist will be able to apply the rules and come to a winning conclusion: The Vehicle Code embraces but one subject, the privileged driver, owner, operator, but the general public has the right to use the highway for their vehicles.

to the nation vary between $300 billion and $1 trillion per year.

Federalist # 47, Jan 30, 1788

The US Senate has had an absolute majority of lawyers for years. The House of Representatives has had an overwhelming plurality and a near majority for just as long. Both the President and Vice President and a majority of the Cabinet are lawyers. The Judiciary consists 100% of lawyers. Declaration of Independence, 1776

All lawyers and judges are required to swear an oath upholding the Constitution. In Florida the State integrated Bar was created in 1949. The Supreme Courts of the individual States created these entities in which the Court alone makes the law, interprets the law and enforces the law, affecting all citizens in the State in violation of the separation of powers principle

Why would anyone who has a right to the highway, go down to the DMV to stand in line to purchase the privilege? But there is much more.

Backing up fifty definitions from "Highway," 'Driver license' is defined in distinctly vague terms at ORS 801.245. If the reader had no idea what a "driver" is, the definition would be practically meaningless. "Driver," by the way, is an old European term for someone who herded animals to the market place. Many will remember that the term migrated to the American Southwest where it was used interchangeably with "cowboy" who "drove" cattle to the railheads. Our former Attorney General, Dave Frohnmayer, sought to remedy the vagueness of the term "driver license" by asking the 1985 Joint Committee on the Revision of the Vehicle Code to amend that definition "to mean the same as "license." Do not be frustrated by the absence of the term "license" in the definition section of the Vehicle Code. The Attorney General is counsel to all state agencies. The body of law titled Executive Branch Organizations describes the proper functioning of state agencies generally. State agencies regulate many sorts of "persons" (from the Greek, "persona," meaning the mask that an actor held before his face to portray a character) and issue numerous licenses. It is only logical that the definition of "license" is in the definition section of the chapter on Executive Branch Organizations at ORS 183.310(5), and that it is: "... permission required by law to pursue any commercial activity, trade, occupation, or profession." Now, returning to the definition section in the Vehicle Code at ORS 801.255, "Driving privilege," a clear picture finally emerges. Persons who are engaged in the profession of hauling for hire on the public resource, highway, are properly granted the privilege, or license, by the people's public servants down at the DMV. Before addressing the inevitable rebuttal that, "Yes, of course there are commercial driver licenses, but everybody has to have one", let's define the term "operator": from the Latin "operatio", meaning the labor performed by a serf for the landlord for a day's wages, from Black's Law Dictionary 3rd Edition. The Legislature's guide to common English usage defines "operator" as anyone who is employed to perform a specific task, such as a teletype "operator." "Driver" is one who is employed to "operate" a motor vehicle" (Black's). Now let us look at the driver-licensing chapter, ORS 807. After getting through the bold face "short title" (which is not law) of ORS 807.010, the first sentence is explicit: Paraphrasing to emphasize the relevant words, we have, "A person who operates a motor vehicle on the highways open to the public better have an appropriate grant of driving privilege." Recalling that each time the term "highway" is used, it means places open as a matter of right to the public, there can be no doubt that while persons must have an appropriate grant of privilege, the paragraph expresses no such requirement for the public.

There are only three "Classes" of driver license described under ORS 807.031: Class A commercial, Class B commercial, and Class C commercial. What about the driver licenses under subsections 4 and 5, the less scholarly reader will ask. The answer is that the Class C commercial is formatted 180% off from the first two. The first two begin by stating that the license is good for operating certain vehicles, but not others unless an endorsement is obtained, but the description of the Class C commercial describes the license with all possible endorsements under sub section 3 and then defines it without the endorsements under sub section 4. This is nothing more than a poor editing job by Legislative Counsel, especially in view of the fact that listing endorsements under the heading "Classes of license" creates a redundancy, because "Kinds of endorsements" is the heading immediately following the listed Commercial licenses. To bring this non argument to a speedy close, cite the single subject rule of Legislative Construction: Since the Classes A, B and C are each "commercial", the Class C in sub section 4 can only be the same commercial license without endorsements, and the Class C in sub section 5 has to be the commercial license for an apprentice. An excellent place to polish this argument is with the DMV's "customer service" phone line. There you will hear reference to the "Regular Class C license." There is no license described as "regular" anything. Try ending the argument with the question: "Is it possible to put commercial endorsements on a license that isn't commercial?" When arguing with these folks, keep in mind that they are speaking from a script, but they did not write it.

'Quit Claim'

in the Corp. U.S. Presidential capacity. Therefore the original jurisdiction government's seats were vacated because the people didn't seat any original jurisdiction government officers.

In 1917, Corp. U.S. enters W.W.I and passes their Trading with the Enemies Act. In 1933, Corp. U.S. went bankrupt and the States agreed to support their resolution. In keeping with the bankruptcy, the Corp. U.S. Congress adjusted their Trading with the Enemies Act with their Emergency War Powers Act, which recognized the people of the United States of America are enemies of Corp. U.S.

No Elections since 1913

Therefore; there was no election of officers of the government of the United States of America. And all of America was none the wiser. The government was still there and the Constitution was still alive and well and living in Washington, D.C. but once again there was nobody sitting in the seats of the officers of government; just like it was when the founding fathers signed the Constitution but the States had not ratified it, the government existed but no one was seated in office. There hasn't been an Election since, and there won't be one until America once again wakes up. [This is why committed conservative constitutionalists like Ron Paul are blacklisted.] This is fantastic, I know, but look at the facts! This is the only solution that makes sense and fits the facts.

U.N., IMF, & World Bank

So we jump from 1913 and the setting of the Federal Reserve Bank as the financier of Corp. U.S. to 1944 and W.W.II. The war was continuing and the United States was not faring too well until the formation of The Bretton Woods Agreements and their new players—"The International Monetary Fund" (a.k.a. the "Fund", hereinafter "IMF"), and "The World Bank for Reconstruction and Development" (a.k.a. the "Bank", hereinafter "World Bank"). Make sure you're sitting down for this one.

The United States Code

(USC) Title 22 § 286 reads: "§ 286. Acceptance of membership by the United States in International Monetary Fund. "The President is hereby authorized to accept membership for the United States in the International Monetary Fund (hereinafter referred to as the "Fund"), and in the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (hereinafter referred to as the "Bank"), provided for by the Articles of Agreement of the Fund and the Articles of Agreement of the Bank as set forth in the Final Act of the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference dated July 22, 1944, and deposited in the archives of the Department of State. (July 31, 1945, ch. 339, § 2, 59 Stat. 512.) Short titles: ... May be cited as the 'Bretton Woods

Agreements Act'.

"Other provisions: Par value modification. For the Congressional direction that the Secretary of the Treasury maintain the value in terms of gold of the Inter-American Development Bank's holdings of United States dollars following the establishment of a par value of the dollar at $38 for a fine troy ounce of gold pursuant to the Par Value Modification Act and for the authorization of the appropriations necessary to provide such maintenance of value, see 31 USC § 449a." (accents in red added). [It should be noted that recently, to cover-up the Bretton Woods Agreements (hereinafter "BWA") control and the quitclaim of the United States Government to the IMF, the United States Congress abolished the references in the USC referring to the BWA. Other than removing such references that abolition had no effect on the BWA.]

The Quit Claim Deed

The agreement further transfers the assets of the United States Treasury to the IMF by stating words to the effect of: 'the United States Treasury is now the Individual Drawing account of the IMF'. Think about it. "The President is hereby authorized to accept membership for the United States in the IMF" The President is authorized by whom? By Congress? No. According to the Act the authorization came from, "the Articles of Agreement of the Fund and the Articles of Agreement of the Bank as set forth in the Final Act of the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference dated July 22, 1944", a.k.a. The Bretton Woods Agreement's final act.

Even if Congress could have authorized such a thing, where would they get the authority to do so? Certainly not from the Constitution, and Congress can't lawfully do anything the Constitution doesn't authorize them to do. Even under the President's dictatorial authority of martial law, the President cannot lawfully do anything not authorized in the Constitution.

The Constitution plainly states: "The enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people." Ninth amendment; and, "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people." Tenth Amendment

Further this joining in the IMF is obviously an international agreement; and, any good dictionary will define, "an agreement between nations" as a, "Treaty". The constitution is very specific on how treaties are to be engaged in with this nation — First, the President signs the treaty; and Second, the Senate ratifies his signature with a two-thirds majority vote. That didn't happen here.

So if the right wasn't given in the Constitution, Congress can't take it and give it to the President. This act itself states that the alleged authorization came from the "Final Act of the United Nations Monetary and Financial Conference" instead of from Congress.

Now, hold on a second here. There are too many things going on here that can't be; too many conflicts. Even in a corrupt government they'd never get away with it.

I was watching Star Trek one time when Spock explained a logical solution to an identity problem like this, 'When you examine the solutions and you discover what cannot be, the solution can only be whatever is left.'

That's the problem here, in Law, it cannot be what it seems to be, yet it is. The United States of America cannot be a member in the IMF, and the Treasury of the United States of America [v. the Treasury of the United States (corp.)] cannot be turned over to a foreign bank's control. The only thing left is they must be talking about Corp. U.S. which was quit claimed to the IMF under the Bretton Woods Agreement as a settlement of W.W.II; that makes Corp. U.S. a private foreign corporation. We can find nothing that says a corporation cannot quit claim itself to another owner, foreign or otherwise.

Now think about it. And, this time instead of thinking the government did it (because they couldn't have), think about Corp. U.S. OK. In that case where it says, "The President is hereby authorized to accept membership for the United States", "United States" as used here can only mean be the trademark name for the corporation known as, "The District of Columbia" in other words the corporation formed in 1871, and not the government.

Want further confirmation? OK. In the "Other provisions:" section it talks about, "the Secretary of Treasury", which is an officer of the corporation only. That position does not exist in the national government. The relatively equivalent position in national government is, "the Treasurer of the United States of America" and that seat was vacated by an Act of Congress in 1920.

As a matter of fact when you review the whole document, Title 22 § 286, and the underlying "Bretton Woods Agreement", you'll find these elements.

One — Corp. U.S.' signs the Bretton Woods Agreements (treaty) and Congress gives Title 22 § 286 the short title of Bretton Woods Agreement Act. Two — In said Agreement, Congress Grants to the IMF the "United States Treasury" as, "The individual drawing account" for the IMF.

Three — "The President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint a governor of the Fund who shall serve as a governor of the Bank" USC 22 § 286a.

The person the President chose as Governor of the World Bank and IMF is Corp. U.S.' Secretary of the Treasury. [He is paid by the foreign corporation.] The elements of a Quit Claim Deed are: there must be a Grantor, a Grantee, and some thing, asset or right must be granted.

In this case the thing being granted is a corporation known as, "The District of Columbia", trademark names, THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT, United States, U.S., USA, America, etc.; its assets are its Treasury (The United States Treasury), and its purpose is to carry out the business needs of the national government of United States of America. Up until the Bretton Woods Agreement, the owner of Corp. U.S. was the United States of America, the actual government; thereafter it was the IMF. The Treasury of the corporation was granted by Grantor, the government of the United States of America (Congress and the President) to the Grantee, the IMF.

Therefore USC Title 22 § 286 exemplifies the Quit Claim Deed of Corp. U.S. from The United States of America to the IMF, which is owned and controlled by the Great Britain's Bank of International Settlements. Up to the point of the quit claim deed, there was allegedly no conflict in interests between Corp. U.S. and its owner the national government of the United States of America, but after the quit claim deed, with the new owner being foreign and having foreign interests, there is a gigantic conflict in interests. Upon review of these actions, as Spock would say, that is the only solution left when you remove all other options.

The States join Corp. U.S.

Starting around 1962 and continuing through 1968. Corp. U.S. went to the States and pointed out to them that their own constitutions forbid them from participating in foreign currencies and/or foreign loans, foreign bonds, etc., and yet they were dealing in the foreign note system of Federal Reserve Notes. They were warned that if the people became aware of this they could imagine a scene similar to that of the Magna Carta signing where the Lords held a sword to the King's head and said sign or we'll get a new king.

The king signed, as did the States. One by one, they organized private corporations as sub-corps. to Corp. U.S. For example, Colorado rewrote Colorado's Constitution, revised their Colorado Revised Statutes (CRS), and enacted CRS Title 24 as the "Administrative Organization Act of 1968" restructuring its laws in 1968. Said Title 24 is the new corporate charter for, "THE STATE OF COLORADO" which is Corp. U.S. possession.

By 1972 every State in the Union had done the same thing. The California Republic, formed "THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA"; The Republic of Texas formed "THE STATE OF TEXAS"; The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, formed "THE STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA"; and so it went, until each and every State had formed a private corporation of a name like "THE STATE OF _____", where the blank is a common name for the State. As people registered to vote with these corporations they participated in their elections of corporate officials and bonded debts; they also stopped electing original jurisdiction State government officials, thus unknowingly vacating their actual State governments.

Where Are You, Do You Know? Like a ship at sea, in order to plot a course, you need to know: who you are, where you are, where you're going and which way the wind is going (what the enemy is doing).

Who are you? Answer: According to Foundational Law in the United States of America, that being recognized as the King James Version of the Bible (see Public Law 97-280), God created man in His own image, giving man dominion, agency and possession (sovereignty) and a commandment to multiply, replenish and subdue the earth (stewardship). With a promise that if we will obey this commandment and remain not of this world then shall we receive our inheritance in His Kingdom. This is a start from foundational law. Should we accept that stewardship, we also have direction in taking responsibility for our stewardship.

Where are you? Answer: You're living in a nation where the chosen form of government is a Constitutional Republic, and where, historically, almost no elections of government officials have been held since 1913, and where a private foreign corporation is responsible for providing the business needs of the government under a direct conflict of interest, which government again is alive and well and living in Washington, D.C.—there just are no officers of government sitting in the seats the Constitution provides. It will serve you well to remember that Corp. U.S. has declared war against the people of this nation.

Where are you going? Answer: Considering the fact did not remove himself from "the well." Brushing aside Montelione's repeated requests for the reasons behind the AG's records request, he repeatedly threatened her with prison and issued an order that she turn over her records. Judge Clark also ignored her motions to dismiss and her challenge to the jurisdiction of that court. Tellingly, Clark also failed to respond to Montelione's questions as to how the AG could have issued a records subpoena when there was no ongoing court case.

In order to close down the case, Montelione set up a private indemnity bond with the secretary of the Treasury and had a notary public tender a bonded promissory note. Clark dishonored the bonded promissory note and on March 28 issued a bench warrant for Montelione.

She was arrested at her home on the 29th. In a rush to judgment, she was given an ex parte hearing on March 31 where she was found guilty on charges of civil and criminal contempt, and remanded by Dauphin County prison for a term of three to six months.

Deanna Muller, of the Dauphin County Public Defender's office, did not return calls from the Bulletin inquiring about the Montelione case.

The above cases, although different in type and venue, all point to an underlying reality—that justice has become discretionary. We appear now to be living under 'the rule of men' and not 'the rule of law.' In order to clear up the confusion as to who has rights and who does not in the "land of the free and home of the brave," I am proposing the following solution: Dust off the yellow stars, and send them out to the folks who do not have rights. In this way, we can stop beating our heads against a hostile justice system and go about our business as second (or third) class citizens.

On the other hand, we could re-institute the Constitution and Bill of Rights, which have been shredded beyond recognition. What a novel idea...

citizens of the State where they resided and ipso facto a citizen of the United States. A citizen is a member of a fictional entity and it is synonymous with subject. What you think is a state is in reality a corporation, in other words, a Person. "Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is Person." 9 F. Supp 272 "Word "person" does not include state. 12 Op Atty Gen 176.

There are no states, just corporations. Every body politic on this planet is a corporation. A corporation is an artificial entity, a fiction at law. They only exist in your mind. They are images in your mind, that speak to you. We labor, pledge our property and give our children to a fiction. For an in-depth look into the nature of these corporations and to see how you also have been declared a fictional entity. See: AMERICAN LAW AND PROCEDURE. JURISPRUDENCE AND LEGAL INSTITUTIONS. VOL.XIII By James De Witt Andrews LL.B. (Albany Law School), LL.D. (Ruskin University) from La Salle University. This book explains in detail the nature and purpose of these corporations, you will be stunned at what you read. Now before we go any further let us examine a few things in the Constitution. Article six section one keeps the loans from the King valid it states; "All Debts contracted and Engagements entered into, before the Adoption of this Constitution, shall be as valid against the United States under this Constitution, as under the Confederation."

Another interesting tidbit can be found at Article One Section Eight clause Two which states that Congress has the power to borrow money on the credit of the United States. This was needed so the United States (Which went into Bankruptcy on January 1, 1788) could borrow money and then because the States were a party to the Constitution they would also be liable for it. The next underhanded move was the creation of The United States Bank in 1791. This was a private Bank of which there were 25,000 shares issued of which 18,000 were held by those in England. The Bank loaned the United States money in exchange for Securities of the United States. Now the creditors of the United States which included the King wanted paid the Interest on the loans that were given to the United States. So Alexander Hamilton came up with the great idea of taxing alcohol. The people resisted so George Washington sent out the militia to collect the tax which they did. This has become known as the Whiskey rebellion. It is the Militia's duty to collect taxes. How did the United States collect taxes off of the people if the people are not a party to the Constitution? I'll tell you how. The people are slaves! The United States belongs to the founding fathers, their posterity and Great Britain. America is nothing more than a Plantation. It always has been. How many times have you seen someone in court attempt to use the Constitution and then the Judge tells him he can't. It is because you are not a party to it. We are SLAVES!!!!!!

If you don't believe read Padelford, Fay & Co. vs. The Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Savannah. 14 Georgia 438, 520 which states "But, indeed, no private person has a right to complain, by suit in court, on the ground of a breach of the Constitution, the Constitution, it is true, is a compact but he is not a party to it." Now back to the Militia. Just read Article One Section Eight clause (15) which states that it is the militia's job to execute the laws of the Union. Now read Clause (16) Which states that Congress has the power to provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the Militia, and for governing such part of them as may be employed in the service of the United States.... the Militia is not there to protect you and me, it is their duty to collect our substance. As you can plainly see all the Constitution did is set up a Military Government to guard the King's commerce and make us slaves. If one goes to 8 U.S. statutes at large 116-132 you will find "The Treaty of Amity, Commerce and Navigation". This Treaty was signed on November 19th, 1794 which was twelve years after the War. Article 2 of the Treaty states that the King's Troops were still occupying the United States. Being the nice King that he was, he decided that the troops would return to England by June 1st, 1796. The troops were still on American soil because, quite frankly the King wanted them here. Many people tend to blame the Jews for our problems, but they too are for the most part also slaves. Jewish Law does however govern the entire world, as found in Jewish Law by MENACHEM ELON, DEPUTY PRESIDENT SUPREME COURT OF ISRAEL, to wit: "Everything in the Babylonian Talmud is binding on all Israel. Every town and country must follow all customs, give effect to the decrees, and carry out the enactments of the Talmudic sages, because the entire Jewish people accepted everything contained in Talmud. The sages who adopted the enactment's and decrees, instituted the practices, rendered the decisions, and derived the laws, constituted all or most of the Sages of Israel. It is they who received the tradition of the fundamentals of the entire Torah in unbroken succession going back to Moses, our teacher."

We are living under what the Bible calls Mammon. As written in the subject Index, Mammon is defined as ("Civil law and procedure").

Now turn to the "The Shetars Effect on English Law" -- A Law of the Jews Becomes the Law of the Land, found in "The George Town Law Journal, Vol 71: pages 11791200." It is clearly stated in the Law Review that the Jews are the property of the Norman and Anglo-Saxon Kings. It also explains that the Talmud is the law of the land. It explains how the Babylonian Talmud became the law of the land, which is now known as the Uniform Commercial Code which is private international law. The written credit agreement -- the Jewish shetar is a lien on all of the property in the world. The treatise also explains that the Jews are owned by Great Britain and that the Jews are in charge of the Banking system. We are living under the Babylonian Talmud. It was brought into England in 1066 and has been enforced by the Pope, Kings and the various religions ever since. It is total and relentless mind control, people are taught to believe in things that do not exist. Private International Law, which is commercial law, only deals with fictions, known as persons. A person is a fictional entity at law, not a living being. See UCC 1-201.

Now before you scream that the UCC is unconstitutional I'm sorry people, you are not a party to any constitution. Read the case cite below. "But, indeed, no private person has a right to complain, by suit in court, on the ground of a breach of the Constitution. The Constitution it is true, is a compact, but he is not a party to it." Padelford, Fay & Co., vs. Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Savannah 14 Ga. 438, 520 You have to understand that Great Britain, (Article six Section one) the United States and the States are the parties to the Constitution not you. Let me try to explain. If I buy an automobile from a man and that automobile has a warranty and the engine blows up the first day I have it. Then I tell the man just forget about it. Then you come along and tell the man to pay me and he says no. So you take him to court for not holding up the contract. The court then says case dismissed. Why? Because you are not a party to the contract. You cannot sue a government official for not adhering to a contract (Constitution) that you are not a party too. You better accept the fact that you are a Slave. When you try to use the Constitution you are committing a CRIME known as CRIMINAL TRESPASS. Why? Because you are attempting to infringe on a private contract that you are not a party to. Then to make matters worse you are a debt slave who owns no property or has any rights. You are a mere user of your Masters property! Here are just a couple of examples:

"The primary control and custody of infants is with the government" Tillman V. Roberts. 108 So. 62

"Marriage is a civil contract to which there are three parties-the husband, the wife and the state." Van Koten v. Van Koten. 154 N.E. 146.

"The ultimate ownership of all property is in the State: individual so-called 'ownership' is only by virtue of Government, i.e. law amounting to mere user; and use must be in accordance with law and subordinate to the necessities of the State. Senate Document No. 43 73rd Congress 1st Session. (Brown v. Welch supra)

You own no Property because you are a slave. Really, you are worse off than a slave is because you are also a debtor.

"The right of traffic or the transmission of property, as an absolute inalienable right, is one which has never existed since governments were instituted, and never can exist under government." Wynehamer v. The People. 13 N.Y. Rep.378, 481 Great Britain to this day collects taxes from the American people. The IRS is not an Agency of the United States Government.

www.apfn.org/apfnlirstax.htm

All taxpayers have an Individual Master File, which is in code. By using IRS Publication 6209, which is over 400 pages, there is a blocking series which shows the taxpayer the type of tax that is being paid. Most taxpayers fall under a 300-399 blocking series, which 6209 states is reserved, but by going to BMF 300-399 which is the Business Master File in 6209 prior to 1991, this was U.S.-U.K. Tax Claims, meaning taxpayers are considered a business and involved in commerce and are held liable for taxes via a treaty between the U.S. and the U.K., payable to the U.K. The form that is supposed to be used for this is form 8288, FIRPTA-Foreign Investment Real Property Tax Account. The 8288 form is in the Law Enforcement Manual of the IRS, chapter 3. The OMB's-paper-Office of Management and Budget, in the Department of Treasury, List of Active Information collections, Approved Under Paperwork Reduction Act is where form 8288 is found under OMB number 1545-0902, which says U.S. with holding tax return for dispositions by foreign persons, of U.S. Form #8288, #8288a. These codes have since been changed to read as follows: IMF 300-309, Barred Assessment, CP 55 generated valid for MFT-30, which is the code for the 1040 form. IMF 310-399 reads U.S.-U.K. Tax Treaty Claims. Isn't it INCREDIBLE that a 1040 form is a payment of a tax to the U.K.? Everybody is always looking to 26 U.S.C. for the law that makes one liable for the so called Income Tax but, it is not in there because it is not a Tax, it is debt collection through a private contract called the Constitution of the United States Article Six, Section One and various agreements. Is a cow paying an income tax when the machine gets connected to its udders? The answer is no. I have never known a cow that owns property or has been compensated for its labor. You own nothing that your labor has ever produced. You don't even own your labor or yourself. Your labor is measured in current credit money, which is debt. You are allowed to retain a small portion of your labor so that you can have food, clothing shelter and most of all breed more slaves.

You see, we are cows, the IRS is company who milks the cows and the United States Inc. is the veterinarian who takes care of the herd and Great Britain is the Owner of the farm in fee simple. The farm is held in allodium by the Pope. Now the picture will become much clearer after reading the next few paragraphs. We will now show the Popes involvement in the scheme of things. "Convinced that the principles of religion contribute most powerfully to keep nations in the state of passive obedience which they owe to their princes, the high contracting parties declare it to be their intention to sustain in their respective states, those measures which the clergy may adopt with the aim of ameliorating their interests, so intimately connected with the preservation of the authority of the princes; and the contracting powers join in offering their thanks to the Pope for what he has already done for them, and solicit his constant cooperation in their views of submitting the nations." Article (3) Treaty of Varona (1822)

If the Sovereign Pontiff should nevertheless, insist on his law being observed he must be obeyed. Bened. XIV., De Syn. Dioec, lib. ix., c. vii., n. 4. Prati, 1844. Pontifical laws moreover become obligatory without being accepted or confirmed by secular rulers. Syllabus, prop. 28, 29, 44. Hence the jus nationale, (Federal Law) or the exceptional ecclesiastical laws prevalent in the United States, may be abolished at any time by the Sovereign Pontiff. Elements of Ecclesiastical Law. Vol. I 53-54. So could this be shown that the Pope rules the world? The Pope (Vicar of Christ) claims to be the ultimate owner of everything in the World. See Treaty of 1213, Papal Bulls of 1455 and 1492.

Don't let this information alarm you because without it you cannot be free. You have to understand that all slavery and freedom originates in the mind. When your mind allows you to accept and understand that the United States, Great Britain and the Vatican are corporations which are nothing but fictional entities which have been placed into your mind, you will understand that our slavery is because we believe in fictions.

Court Security Improvement Act of 2007

The Court Security Improvement Act of 2007 (Public Law 110-177) was enacted into law on January 7, 2008. The Act adds two new provisions (18 U.S.C. §§ 119 and 1521) to the Criminal Code that are of particular relevance to the inmate population.

Title 18 U.S.C. § 1521 establishes a new criminal offense for filing, attempting to file, or conspiring to file, a false lien or encumbrance against the real or personal property of a Federal Judge or Federal law enforcement officer (as described in 18 U.S.C. § 1114). The offense is punishable by up to 10 years imprisonment.

Title 18 U.S.C. § 119 establishes a new criminal offense for making publicly available "restricted personal information" about a "covered individual" with the intent to threaten, intimidate, or incite a crime of violence against such persons, which includes court officers, jurors, witnesses, informants, Federal law enforcement officers as described in 18 U.S.C. § 1114, and others. The offense is punishable by up to 5 years imprisonment.

Memo from the desk of Barton A. Buhtz

I am including this memo to clarify an apparent confusion with many regarding the workings of the UCC/Redemption Process. I have received a number of notes, memorandums and letters that can be condensed into one concern and can be answered in one clarification. The concern: Why do the taxing agencies keep sending claims that have been discharged?

Clarification: Suppose you send me a billing statement. The first action I would take is to determine that I have the funds to cover the claim. So I make a deposit with the financial institution then issue a negotiable instrument to the claimant.

Now, understand I have verification from the financial institution that the instrument I issue is valid and covered. However, suppose you receive my instrument and you ignore it then respond to me with another claim as though I never tendered the instrument? What then?

That is exactly the problem many have with the IRS or a state-taxing agency. The proper notice and paperwork was sent to the Secretary of the Treasury that applied to the UCC Contract Trust. The discharge has been acknowledged by the Secretary of the Treasury.

You, the Secured Party have the Return Receipt as proof. So what to do when the taxing agent makes another identical demand on you?

We now know that we can turn to the Treasury Data Integrity Board under Treasury Directive 25-06 and related directives, the Office of Management and Budget, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and the Department of the Treasury Financial Management Service. All of them have a myriad of references to "Acceptance For Value." They are well acquainted with the process.

Even the Supreme Court has made a final decision in your favor in Hallenbeck vs. Leimert, 295 U.S. 116.

So we keep responding to the taxing agent with the appropriate discharge documents until they act according to the law or are held accountable by these agencies. Don't give up. Be faithful. We will help you respond accordingly to each presentment. Eventually the taxing agent will get it right. We simply have to be consistent and patient.

billion barrels of oil and 420 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

There are 3,200 oil rigs off the coast of Louisiana. During Katrina, not a single drop was spilled.

More than 7 billion barrels have been pumped from these wells over the past quarter-century, yet only one thousandth of one percent has been spilled.

A study by Louisiana's Sea Grant college shows that there's 50 times more marine life around oil platforms than act as artificial reefs than in the surrounding mud bottoms. Some 85% of Louisiana fishing trips involve fishing around these offshore rigs.

The Flower Garden coral reefs lie off the Louisiana-Texas border. They are surrounded by oil platforms that have been pumping for 50 years.

According to federal biologist G.P. Schmahl, "The Flower Gardens are much healthier, more pristine than anything in the Florida Keys. It was a surprise to me. And I think it's a surprise to most people."

We would suggest that John McCain revisit his reservations about ANWR and run against the drill-nothing Congress. Energy development and the environment are not Putin's anger, according to these reports, is based upon the United States engineering of the failure of United Nations talks on the Serbian breakaway province of Kosovo which is seeking independence, and which, according to Russian experts, will lead to an 'uncontrollable crisis' throughout the Balkans.

Putin was reported to have told one of his top aides that 'two can play at this game'.

in an obvious reference to the American President whom President Putin blames as being behind the machinations to increase instability along Russia's borders with Eastern Europe.

Russian legal experts further state that of all of the United States Indian Tribes, the Lakota Sioux are the best positioned to have their declaration of independence from the American government recognized by the United Nations as they remain the only indigenous peoples in the US to have refused to accept payment for their lands, estimated to be nearly $1 billion, which they consider their 'sacred grounds' and have stated they would never that you are at war, you only have two choices on where to go. You must decide whose side you're on. Are you on the side of Liberty, Independence, and the Creator, or are you on the side of the private foreign corporation that has declared that you are its enemy? What is the Enemy doing?

Answer: The enemy is usurping control over the people, breaking up families ironically through the use of the Marriage License and "parents patria" [the state is the parent, <http://www.teamlaw.org/ProtectFamily.htm>], public education, and the media. The enemy is usurping "Color of Law" land control over family farms, homes, and land under the guise of Taxes, the Endangered Species Act, and the Wetlands Act. That doesn't take into consideration all of the specious cases brought in courts against land owners. Under the Patriot Act they can call anyone a terrorist and hold them indefinitely without trial and under the Homeland Security Act they can do or take almost anything they want simply because they want to. Example, in eviction cases in Colorado, the Sheriffs Offices never use warrants to gain access to the land, they use a "Color of Law" "Writ of Restitution" instead and then say they are breaking and entering in good faith on the specious authority of the court ordered writ.

The UN has set a World maximum population at One Billion people, current world population is near Six Billion. (United Nations Environment Program-UNEP, Global Biodiversity Assessment-GBA) The enemy is killing people, worldwide with biological warfare. The death toll is already over 300,000,000 people. In state aided abortions over 40,000,000 children have been murdered in the last ten years. Population growth rates are at .83% and need to be at 2.1% just to stay even.

The bottom line: if you look at all the people around you, your neighbors, your family, etc., for every six you see only one will survive the plans of this war, if the enemy has its way. The simple fact is that we are in trouble and if we do not awaken and fix the problem with our current trend our history will end. So what can you do?

Time to Plot Your Course

First, recognize the war is real-before it's too late. Second, notice their given name for this war is, "The Quiet War", that means that until recently their main weapon against us is the fact that this war didn't look like a war. They must create the appearance of proper government procedure in order to make this war work successfully. Most of their minions are ignorant of the existence of the war and are therefore ignorantly destroying our nations thinking they're helping their nation. Yet with the evidences over the past few years it is impossible to ignore it any longer.

Third, avoid taking any overt actions against the enemy until you're ready and then only take legal and lawful actions to compel Corp. U.S. and the State of "X" to obey the law. The most important thing is to start studying and spreading the word. Remember, Team Law was created to wake up and educate — use us.

In your studies: 1st—Discover what your stewardship is: family, land, etc.; 2nd—Discover the status of your stewardship: Marriage License, parents patria, no land patent, assets, asset protection, etc.; 3rd—Discover working solutions to your stewardship status problems, take no action yet;

4th—Notice who's on the enemy's front lines against you and yours — what agencies etc. (examples: IRS, County Assessor, Court, Social Services, non-Corp. USA enemy); 5th—Discover what the enemy's weapons of war are and how those weapons are used; 6th—Learn to disarm weapons before the enemy can use them; 7th—Prepare to take legal, lawful and legislative action.

Fourth, having discovered the truth and confirmed it with your own research, you are armed with knowledge ready to take action and mount the battle field. Because each person's situation is different, we cannot here provide how we would proceed in each situation, but in each case the best plan of action would follow this pattern:

1st—Know your enemy (see the 4th step above); Example, If your front line enemy is IRS, they are a foreign corporation contracted to Corp. U.S. as a collections agent; you must understand who they are and study the tax code that binds their operations to discover what your relationship is with them. Accordingly we would follow the Standard for Review presented on our Open Forum to understand the relationship and learn how to deal with them.

2nd—Disarm your enemy (see the 5th & 6th steps above); Example, If the only thing IRS can do is seize your property if you don't pay, disarm them by paying (Team Law can show you how to pay and not loose a cent). If paying is not an option, the taxpayer can respond to any Notice of Deficiency or Notice of Determination with an action in the Tax Court. IRS' own statistics show 80% of the cases brought there get relief.

The way we see the situation there is no way to loose such a case if the taxpayer learns how to do it right and proceeds accordingly (again, Team Law can help);

3rd—Fight your enemy, by implementing your working solutions; Results, IRS statistics show that when people pay first and then fight IRS, they win 998 cases out of 1000, when people fight paying they loose over 90% of the time;

4th—Follow through. If the enemy violates law, any law, hold them accountable; Fact, most of the time the enemy has not educated their minions in truth or law therefore they're very vulnerable;

5th—Inform your neighbor;

6th—Endure through the end.

We would suggest that John McCain revisit his reservations about ANWR and run against the drill-nothing Congress. Energy development and the environment are not why we have high gas prices! Not because of the selling price of a barrel of oil, no, because U.S. politicians are, aside from being lazy and greedy, but are involved in a scheme to not to use U.S.A. oil and to allow the high gas prices to affect the

It is, also, interesting to note that the Lakota Sioux are credited with one of the American Indians greatest defeat of US Military Forces in the Indian Wars by defeating the US Civil War Hero George Armstrong Custer and his Seventh Cavalry in June 1876 at the battle of Little Big Horn. With these latest events, and with Russia as a potential new ally, one can only wonder if these long-suffering and resilient Indians can once again defeat their age-old enemies residing in the corridors of power in Washington D.C.

Time to Plot Your Course

First, recognize the war is real-before it's too late. Second, notice their given name for this war is, "The Quiet War", that means that until recently their main weapon against us is the fact that this war didn't look like a war. They must create the appearance of proper government procedure in order to make this war work successfully. Most of their minions are ignorant of the existence of the war and are therefore ignorantly destroying our nations thinking they're helping their nation. Yet with the evidences over the past few years it is impossible to ignore it any longer.

Third, avoid taking any overt actions against the enemy until you're ready and then only take legal and lawful actions to compel Corp. U.S. and the State of "X" to obey the law. The most important thing is to start studying and spreading the word. Remember, Team Law was created to wake up and educate — use us.

In your studies: 1st—Discover what your stewardship is: family, land, etc.; 2nd—Discover the status of your stewardship: Marriage License, parents patria, no land patent, assets, asset protection, etc.; 3rd—Discover working solutions to your stewardship status problems, take no action yet;

4th—Notice who's on the enemy's front lines against you and yours — what agencies etc. (examples: IRS, County Assessor, Court, Social Services, non-Corp. USA enemy); 5th—Discover what the enemy's weapons of war are and how those weapons are used; 6th—Learn to disarm weapons before the enemy can use them; 7th—Prepare to take legal, lawful and legislative action.

Fourth, having discovered the truth and confirmed it with your own research, you are armed with knowledge ready to take action and mount the battle field. Because each person's situation is different, we cannot here provide how we would proceed in each situation, but in each case the best plan of action would follow this pattern:

1st—Know your enemy (see the 4th step above); Example, If your front line enemy is IRS, they are a foreign corporation contracted to Corp. U.S. as a collections agent; you must understand who they are and study the tax code that binds their operations to discover what your relationship is with them. Accordingly we would follow the Standard for Review presented on our Open Forum to understand the relationship and learn how to deal with them.

2nd—Disarm your enemy (see the 5th & 6th steps above); Example, If the only thing IRS can do is seize your property if you don't pay, disarm them by paying (Team Law can show you how to pay and not loose a cent). If paying is not an option, the taxpayer can respond to any Notice of Deficiency or Notice of Determination with an action in the Tax Court. IRS' own statistics show 80% of the cases brought there get relief.

The way we see the situation there is no way to loose such a case if the taxpayer learns how to do it right and proceeds accordingly (again, Team Law can help);

3rd—Fight your enemy, by implementing your working solutions; Results, IRS statistics show that when people pay first and then fight IRS, they win 998 cases out of 1000, when people fight paying they loose over 90% of the time;

4th—Follow through. If the enemy violates law, any law, hold them accountable; Fact, most of the time the enemy has not educated their minions in truth or law therefore they're very vulnerable;

5th—Inform your neighbor;

6th—Endure through the end.

the problem with our current trend our history will end. So what can you do?

REDEMPTION Manual 4TH Edition

Published By The Americans Bulletin

How To Become A Secured Party Creditor
Understanding the MATRIX and taking commercial control

The Latest Updated Version which is the First Book covering the Redemption process; The Redemption Manual 4th Edition, will give you the fundamentals to Redeem and take control of your "DEBTOR" and all your property (Due to U.S. Bankruptcy) by filing a 'superior security interest'/Lien and allows you to establish standing and capacity as the Secured Party Creditor. It's the 'HOW TO Book' where you will learn: What Redemption is, commercially and from a 'Biblical' perspective, Acceptance for Value, Corporations, Public Education, the Monetary System, the Republic, Money Creation and Banks, Our Mirror Image, HJR-192 and a whole lot MORE!

The Beginning Set-Up - the documents, UCC filings and the 'HOW TO' needed to file in and become the Secured Party/Creditor and how to do the CHARGE BACK to the Secretary of the Treasury (to charge-up your UCC Contract Trust Account), with sample forms and instructions. You'll learn to do your own Security Agreement, Power of Attorney, Copyright Notice, Hold-harmless, your UCC-1 and UCC-3 to take control of your 'Straw-man' and the property. Additional EDUCATIONAL information is included with forms in the book as well as 'additional information' on the BONUS CD! The Redemption Manual 4th Edition contains over 650 pages!
